Prayers Travel Far
The Emperor Has Lions
Nobody Was Frozen
To Discourage Crime

Throughout the United States, 5000 clergymen, with congregations totaling some 4,000,000, will pray all together that Ethiopia may be saved from war. This should be helpful, although modern information about the universe changes the aspect. Once it was thought that the Ruler of the universe sat just above our heads, bringing out the stars and moon into the sky as they were needed, pouring down rain from a reservoir, while satan's domain was just under our feet. Smoke from volcanoes "proved it."

Now that we know that our "Galactic Circle" or "Milky Way" contains at least thirty thousand million suns, each one a million times as big as our earth, and our stupendous subuniverse is only like a grain of sand, in the whole universe, which numbers more than 500,000,000 such "sub-universes."

Our Milky Way universe, shaped like the glass on a watch, turns round once in two hundred and twenty-five million years, and to get out this universe and reach the seat of its government, you would have to travel at least nine hundred million years, going at the rate of 186,000 miles per second.

All this, however, in no way minimizes God's power to hear each word said by each of those 5000 clergymen, if He cares to take the trouble.

An interesting photograph from Addis Ababa shows two servants of the Ethiopian Emperor riding on lions, one female, one male, in the palace garden. The Emperor's lions are trained in this fashion for use as "watch dogs." You can easily believe that intruders "keep out."

For war purposes, however, lions are not particularly valuable. Tear gas and deadly poisonous gas would discourage the lions, as they would men, and lions cannot jump as high as an airplane.

Several have written to this column offering to let themselves be "frozen stiff and then refreezed to life" in the interest of science, as suggested by a Los Angeles chemist, R. S. Willard. They will be sorry to hear that the American Medical Association calls Mr. Willard's alleged freezing "a vicious hoax."

It accuses Willard of freezing a dead monkey, and then substituting a live one, supposed to have been frozen and thawed out.

It was an interesting yarn while it lasted.

Recently a colonel in our army suggested sending 10,000 hand-picked criminals to establish a "better civilization" for themselves, on the Rat Islands, four good-sized plots of land in the Pacific ocean, 1000 miles from Alaska, 2000 miles from Hawaii. The idea would be to let them fight it out among themselves and see what they could with no supervision. A sarcastic industrialist suggests that one or two earnest "professors" be sent along.

New York's Magistrate Goldstein suggests a simpler plan for less important offenders. He would have "hoboes" ducked in water and doused with powerful fire department hose. "We sort swell and garbage," says the magistrate, and should also sort human beings.

In case it makes any difference, that punishment would be unconstitutional, because it is "cruel and unusual," and you cannot do that.

Uncle Sam, with all his spending, makes a little something for himself. His money-issuing privileges, paper dollars worth about fifty cents, and silver coins containing less than half their value in silver, have given the treasury a profit of about three thousand million dollars.

And at this moment it does not appear to have hurt anybody. Who understands money?

Unpleasant union development in New York. Two unions cannot agree on who should rule movie theaters. One "side" of the quarrel—the police are not sure which—passing theaters quickly in a motor car, hurled explosive bombs. Nobody was killed. It is hoped that less violent methods may be used to establish union labor supremacy.

Meanwhile, General Johnson, who has $520,000,000 to spend for the benefit of New York's unemployed, reports the strike against the government a failure. The "walkout" has collapsed. Only 436 out of 77,806 men employed left the jobs, not a "sweeping labor victory," as yet.

Wife Kills Pajama-Clad Girl Love Rival

CAPE KIDNAP PLOT FOILED

WIFE SLAYS TYPIST LOVE RIVAL

By International News Service

New York, Aug. 14—While her wealthy husband, Arthur Reisman, looked on, stupefied, Mrs. Etta Reisman today shot and killed his pretty blonde secretary, 23-year-old Virginia Seigh.

Stalking across the lawn in a trailing, white nightgown, the infuriated wife fired once as the frightened girl, Miss Seigh sank to the ground, a crimson stain spreading on her flimy orange pajamas over her heart.

She died almost instantly.

In a vain attempt to prevent the slaying, Mrs. Reisman's stepdaughter, Annette, 23, wrestled with her for possession of the gun and was shot in the finger.

While the two women fought desperately, the scantily clad secretary started to flee. But Mrs. Reisman tore loose from her stepdaughter's grasp, caught Miss Seigh, spun her around and shot pointblank at her heart.

Reisman, sitting in the family car in the driveway, finally comprehended what had happened. He staggered from the car.

"My God!" Reisman exclaimed, "You don't know what you did! You've just shot my sweetheart in cold blood!"

EMBRACES CORPSE

He threw himself down and embraced the corpse, police said.

Disregarding her husband, Mrs. Reisman turned and fired three remaining shots at the garage, then ran into the house, weeping hysterically.

Annette, who was the slain girl's best friend, saw bloodstains from her own wound on her lavender pajamas and hurried inside also.

Mrs. Reisman called a family

McGlue and Saxe Named by Curley

Governor Curley today again confounded his political opponents with two surprise appointments to important positions.

Charles H. McGlue, former chairman of the Democratic state committee, was appointed to the state ballot law commission.

William W. Saxe, frequently connected with the Governor's political organization as a publicity director, was appointed to the Boston Finance Commission.

Saxe was named to take the place of Judge Jacob J. Kaplan, the only anti-Curley man remaining on the Finance Commission. Kaplan was demoted by the governor from the chairmanship early the year. His term had expired.

Both McGlue and Saxe were active in the governor's last campaign. McGlue takes the place of George P. Beckford, a Republican, who has long been chairman of the Ballot Law Commission.

Mrs. Marie B. Rogers of Cambridge, wife of Professor Robert E. Rogers of M. I. T., the Boston Evening American columnist, was named to be a trustee of the Perkins Institute for the Blind, succeeding Mabel K. Gage.

Lady Carrot worked fast and, though unable to reach the leaders, Boba Boys, displayed good speed, forced the early pace and faltered in the stretch run. Creme De Menthe, under pressure to keep forward, showed early, weakened in the last quarter mile. Allaquippa was never steady and outran throughout. Blind Talk stumbled and unseated her rider soon after the start.

Frankhouse on Tribal Hill

The Braves knocked Johnson out of the box in the fourth when they went on a batting spree and tallied five times to go ahead 5 to 1.

The Braves increased their total to seven when they scored twice in the fifth on doubles by Berger and Mueller and on a triple by Whitney.

Bonds Lack Votes, Curley in Threat

The $4,000,000 public buildings bond bill was passed by the House today but a two-thirds test will come later.

Judging by the vote today, 130 to 83, the opponents will have enough votes to kill it in that test.

Governor Curley upon learning of today's count said:

"I feel that this measure will receive a two-thirds affirmative vote when the time comes but if it doesn't the legislature can make up their minds that they'll be in session until the snow flies."

The opponents lost out in an effort to substitute another measure, under which the $4,000,000 for public buildings would be transferred from the $13,000,000 bond issue previously authorized.

Representative William Baker, Republican, Newton, pleaded with the members to "stop borrowing, if there is any sanity left," and said he would not vote for the bill if he had to stay there until next year.

KNOX LASHES 'DEAL', HURLS HAT IN RING

Hampton Beach, N. H., Aug. 14—Striking at what he termed President Roosevelt's repudiation of his party and "scrapping" of the Constitution, Colonel Frank Knox today flung his hat into the Republican Presidential ring.

He charged that President Roosevelt has renounced six planks of his 1932 platform, and he urged the adoption into the Republican platform of 1936 all of these party pledges.

Before enthusiastic Republicans of Rockingham County at their annual outing, Colonel Knox declared this was one way of answering the Democratic charge that the Republican party "offered no substitute program in its attack on the Democratic administration.

He flayed President Roosevelt's administration for promoting laws which they knew would be declared unconstitutional, "for the deliberate purpose of undermining the power and prestige of the Supreme Court."

The six planks of Democratic origin which Colonel Knox advocated as offering sound Republican purpose are:

1. An immediate and drastic reduction of governmental expenditures.

2. Maintenance of the national credit by a federal budget annually balanced.

3. A sound currency to be preserved at all hazards.

4. Unemployment and old age insurance under state laws.

5. Strict and impartial enforcement of the anti-trust laws to prevent monopoly and unfair trade practices.

6. Opposition to the unsound

$184,000 Gems Lost In Mdivani Crash

BARONESS MAUD VON THYSSEN

Her Gems Vanish After Fatal Accident

By Associated Press

Barcelona, Aug. 14—Governor-General Pichypon of Catalonia announced today a complaint that a suitcase containing 2,800,000 francs ($184,800) worth of jewelry had disappeared from the automobile in which Prince Alexis Mdivani lost his life in an accident August 1.

The governor said the information was lodged with him by Baron von Thyssen, husband of the woman who was with Prince Mdivani on the fatal automobile ride.

He said the baron informed him that the jewelry belonged to the baroness and that the suitcase and its contents disappeared while she was being taken to the hospital from the scene of the wreck.

Pichypon circulated a description of the missing jewelry in an attempt to recover it.

Baroness Maud von Thyssen, seriously injured in the crash, was said at the hospital to which she was taken to have lost the sight of one eye in the accident.

By Associated Press

Gerona, Spain, Aug. 14—A French specialist, Dr. Lavinak, has been summoned from Paris to attend Princess Isabel, sister of the late Prince Alexis Mdivani.

The princess, wife of Jose Maria Sert, Spanish portrait painter, was reported to be suffering with a temporary nervous paralysis caused by the death of her brother in an automobile accident August 1.

2 ABDUCTORS PURSUED BY 100 AUTOS

State troopers and a civilian motor posse of 100 cars scoured Cape Cod today in search of two masked men who invaded the Wellfleet summer estate of Dr. Leighton F. Johnson, noted Boston surgeon.

The masked pair, who fled the estate in a New York car, are suspected to have plotted the looting of the home or the kidnaping of one of Dr. Johnson's children.

The children are David, 10, and Samuel, 14, a student at Noble & Greenough school.

FIRES TWO SHOTS

David was alone at the time and Samuel, arriving as the masked men fled, fired two shots after them from a small calibre rifle.

State police took charge of the case, and State Detective Ernest Bradford was assigned when the report was flashed to the State House.

Troopers were immediately placed on guard at the canal bridgeheads at Sagamore and Bourne, and the New York car, its registration known, was believed trapped on the Cape.

Federal agents were aware of the investigation although they denied they were participating.

Dr. Johnson is a well known nose and throat specialist with offices at 15 Bay State road and a home on Bond street, Norwood. He told authorities he had received no threats.

SURPRISE KIDNAPERS

Dr. and Mrs. Johnson attended the performance at the Cape Playhouse in Dennis last night, leaving David at home with a maid. Samuel went to spend the evening at the nearby summer home of Mrs. Howard Cobberly, Jr., of New Jersey.

As Mrs. Cobberly stopped her car, one of the masked men walked towards it, noted its occupants, turned and ran to the other car, which quickly sped away.

Samuel, rushing into the house, seized a rifle with which he fired two shots.

As he fired his parents arrived.

Mrs. Joseph Gough, sister of Dr. Johnson, said her brother was not inclined to treat the matter seriously.

Mrs. Johnson is the daughter of Mrs. William Woodman of Perkins street, Wakefield.

THOUSANDS IN PANIC FLEE NEW ITALIAN FLOOD FEAR

MANY BODIES IN DEBRIS; ALL LIVESTOCK DROWNED

By Associated Press

Turin, Aug. 14—Several thousand remaining residents of the valley below the Ovada Dam, which burst yesterday with an estimated loss of 250 lives, fled in terror to mountain refuges today as a rumor spread another dam above Ovada had collapsed.

The terror-stricken populace broke through ranks of police and soldiers and commandeered every vehicle and animal with which they could depart to the surrounding mountains.

The people already had been driven into near-hysteria by the horrors of the preceding day in which their homes and relatives were swept away by a powerful wall of water when the hydro-electric dam burst.

THUNDER CLAPS HORROR

Only after hours of toiling up steep slopes and after official denials that the dam of the upper lake had given in could the rescuers induce the villagers to return to the valley to aid in relief work.

The estimate of 250 dead followed an original report by rescue agencies that 1000 were killed.

Provincial authorities said that several hundred persons were suffering from injuries, shock, and exposure as a result of the sudden torrent which covered 40 square miles.

$25,000,000 DAMAGE

The torrents swept over an area of 40 square miles yesterday and damage was estimated at 300,000,000 lira (about $25,000,000).

All crops in the path of the flood—grapes, grain, fruit and vegetables—were destroyed.

At least 100 houses were demolished.

Rescue workers said it was likely some of the bodies covered by the debris never could be recovered. It was believed that women and children made up the greater part of the death list.

Their homes were smashed in on them as they rested from the midday heat.

The catastrophe struck with tragic suddenness. There was a terrific roar and the shattered dam loosed the raging torrents on the valley.

Houses and factories collapsed like match boxes under the impact of the swiftly moving stream.

Three railroad bridges and a half-dozen bridges were strewn before the onrushing waters.

More than 100 persons, rescue workers said, were drowned almost without warning in the town of Ovada.

BODIES IN DEBRIS

Rescue work was slow and difficult. The ruined valley was piled high with debris beneath which lay the bodies of the victims.

Survivors reaching here told of having seen entire families wiped out as the wall of water swept down the valley. The water poured on them through doors and windows and finally tore houses from their foundations and smashed them.

Only officials and the relief details were allowed in the stricken area, and no details of the extent of the havoc was obtainable. Morning newspapers carried no news of the disaster.

Ovada, about 19 miles south of Alessandria, is in the province of Piedmont, near the Gulf of Genoa.

The power plant was built ten years ago at the cost of 40,000,000 lira. The dam that controlled the water which supplied its power is believed to have been weakened by the vast store of water from recent storms.

Paralysis Toll 94, Nine New Cases

Boston's infantile paralysis cases now total 94 with 33 additional cases reported since July 15 in outlying districts.

Nine more cases were reported today in the city. They are Charlotte Collins, 11, Spaulding street, Dorchester; Elizabeth Galvin, 3, Hunneman street, Roxbury; Natalia Housman, 9, Vesta road, Dorchester; Frank Milano, 3, West Lenox street, South End; Josephine Olivieri, 4, Hull street, North; Jessop Reynolds, 7, Harvard street, Dorchester and Rose Ovassal, 5, St. John street, Jamaica Plain.

G. O. P. CLAIMS 75 GAIN IN NEW CONGRESS; EYES ON KNOX

By Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 14—Representative Chester C. Bolton of Ohio, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, forecast today that his party would pick up "at least 75 or 100 House seats" at the next election.

"There is an even chance that we will get a majority," Bolton said.

To do this the Republicans would have to gain 112 seats.

Bolton said his committee was conducting a survey of public opinion.

"There is a strong revulsion against the activities of this administration," he said.

"We think that this trend will continue. The wealth tax proposal is the last straw.

"If the administration doesn't want to cut down its frightful expenditures, the only thing left is a broad tax program that will hit everyone.

"The squawks have already started. People are tired of this spending."

ALL EYES ON KNOX

One was a remark by former Senator George H. Moses (R), New Hampshire, that Colonel Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, had more support at present for the Republican presidential nomination in 1936 than any other man.

Political observers watched dispatches from Hampton Beach, N. H., where Knox was chosen to address a Republican rally today. Moses also was to attend the gathering.

Meanwhile Martin L. Davey, Ohio's Democratic governor, reiterated that he opposed calling a special election to fill the congressional vacancy created by the death of Representative Charles V. Truax (D), Ohio.

Davey came here today to confer with President Roosevelt. He said the purpose of the visit was to see about the probabilities of obtaining more than $15,000,000 in PWA funds for Ohio welfare work.

"DENIES "INFLUENCE"

Concerning a special election, he said he was making his statement before the White House visit because "I do not want anyone to be able to say that my decision was influenced" by the national Democratic leaders or that he was using special election possibilities "as a club to get money out of the national administration for Ohio."

Republicans have asserted that the Democrats feared to have a special election called now.

In New York, former President Hoover, attended to charitable, political and business matters. He did not add to his Chicago statement on constitutionality but conferred at length with friends, including Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and Ogden Mills.

SICK OF SPENDING

As for Republican congressional prospects, Bolton analyzed the situation this way:

"We got that Rhode Island seat when the Democrats carried the district at the last election by 21,000 votes. You can just guess what will happen when we move into the districts where the margin was small in 1934.

"And the part of it that isn't receiving so much attention is that those folks in Rhode Island voted against all those bond issues.

WIFE SLAYER OF LOVE RIVAL

friend, Dr. C. J. Cohen, who for several months had been trying to smooth the domestic lives of the Reismans, and announced:

"I've just killed Virginia."

They found that seven years ago Annette had brought Miss Seigh, then 16, to live at the Reisman home.

Reisman, who is 42 and proprietor of a prosperous beauty shop chain of six stores, was attracted to the willowy blonde and made her his secretary.

PROPOSED SEPARATION

This family and business arrangement led to ever mounting difficulties between Mr. and Mrs. Reisman.

Lately Reisman had proposed a separation offering his wife $30 a week alimony, police said. After arguing about this late last night, Reisman angrily stalked out of the house to his car.

Miss Seigh, Annette and Mrs. Reisman tried vainly to get him back in the house. Then, at about 2 a. m. Mrs. Reisman rushed into the house, snatched up a revolver from Reisman's desk and the shooting followed.

The wife was a picture of blank despair when police arrived. Detective Thomas Kenny's first question was:

"Why did you do it?"

"He told me they loved each other," was her anguished reply.

"LOST EVERYTHING"

"What good will it do you? The girl is dead now."

"Oh!" She clenched her hands over her head, "I don't care any longer. I've lost everything."

Arthur Reisman, Jr., nine, slept through the shooting. But he was later heard crying in his room when police led Mrs. Reisman away.

Arraigned on a homicide charge, Mrs. Reisman was held without bail for a hearing Aug 21.

'WE' NOW YOURS

Ann Tells of Epic Flight

By Universal Service

New York, Aug. 14—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife have battled side by side through danger in the air, perilous forced landings in bleak Alaska and Japan, and fire in Siberia, Anne Morrow Lindbergh disclosed today for the first time.

Vivid and intimate revelations of eerie nights in dark skies and thrilling adventures of America's "family number one of the air" on their 1932 flight to China over the north Pacific and the Arctic wastes, were told today by Anne Lindbergh in her new book, "North to the Orient," just published.

COLONEL THE HERO

It is a woman's tale of aerial pioneering in which "Charles," the husband, plays little part. But Colonel Lindbergh, the quiet, efficient aviator, is the guiding spirit throughout.

Rich with adventure and color, the tale is tinged with a queer unsophisticated amazement at everything new or strange that imparts to the book its greatest attribute—charm.

Anne Lindbergh had spent many trying months learning how to operate a radio. She traveled in the "Sirius," the Lindbergh plane, as its radio operator and as such was held strictly responsible for the safety of herself and her famous husband.

She describes the perilous forced landing in the murky blackness of an Arctic night.

"I remember now what night was. It was being blind and lost and trapped. It was looking and not seeing—that was night.

"I looked out and caught my breath. The sea and sky had merged. The dark had leaped up several steps behind me when my back was turned, I would have to keep my eye on him or he would sneak up like the child's game of steps. But the radio was buzzing. My head went down again. . . .

"'Hurry up, going to land,' came a shout from the front cockpit. We were banking steadily.

"'Down, down, down, the cold air whistling through the cowlings as we dived toward the ocean. I must wind in the antenna before we hit the water. The muscles in my arms stiffened to soreness turning the wheel at top speed, as though I were reeling in a gigantic fish from the bottom of the sea.

"Once more turn-jiggle, snap, the ball weight clicked into place—all wound up and safe.. Now brace yourself for the landing. How can he see anything? . . . We were down—we were safe. Somewhere out on the wild coast of the Seward Peninsula."

A THRILLING CHAPTER

By far the most thrilling story in the volume is Anne Lindbergh's version of her husband's battle with hundreds of starving victims of the overflowing Yangtse river. The colonel had volunteered to aid relief agencies along the banks of the river by surveying the flooded areas from his plane.

The Sirius, carrying a Chinese and an American doctor, landed in the swollen waters. The plane was loaded with disease-fighting vaccines. There was no food aboard. The weight would be too much for the plane to carry.

"There were 10 or 20 of them poling about. Men, women and children, sullen and hungry, looked at the package and began to murmur among themselves. 'Food,' they were saying. 'There must be food in the box'."

More and more gathered about the floating Sirius until there was danger that one of the heavy screws of the Chinese sampans would knock a hole in the pontoons.

"Suddenly the man stood up and put his foot on the left pontoon. As though at a signal the rest surged forward. Now a man was on the other pontoon they began to board.

"My husband grabbed his revolver and covered the nearest man. He stopped, but did not move back . . . He whipped the gun from the right side to the left quickly, shooting straight up in the air as he turned. Each side thought someone had been shot by the other . . ."

"And if flying, like a glass-bottomed bucket, can give you that vision, that seeing eye which peers down to the still world below the choppy waves—it will remain magic."

KNOX HURLS HAT INTO '36 RING

policy of restricting agricultural production.

The strategic value of these proposals lay, Colonel Knox declared, in preserving the precise language in which they were quoted to him.

REPUDIATED AFTER VOTE

He added:

"This is important, because they are taken, literally, from the Democratic platform of 1932.

"They represent principles upon which all those opposed to the radicalism of President Roosevelt can support the Republican party, and they represent in every single instance, the utter repudiation by Roosevelt and his New Deal administration of sacred promises made upon the basis of which he secured his election.

"Ever since June, 1933, every industrial nation in the world has been showing steady improvement in business and industrial conditions. We alone, who should have led, have lagged in the procession."

NOT ENOUGH TO PAY

The Chicago publisher said of the tax program of the Roosevelt Administration:

"Since Roosevelt entered the White House the total increase in the national debt has been $18,000,000,000. We have to keep that up.

"If we confiscated every penny of taxable income of every one who paid an income tax in 1933 we would lack, by one-third, the sum necessary to pay the deficit.

"If we took every penny of this and applied it to this year's expenditures, we would have scarcely enough to cover the year's spending plus the interest due on debt.

"This ought to dispose, in the mind of any man, of the idea that the rich man and the well-to-do pay all the taxes.

"If we took the entire income of income tax payers with incomes in excess of $50,000 per year, and divided it among the people of the United States, each one of us would be richer in the the sum of $2."

BORN IN DORCHESTER

Colonel Knox is a veteran of the Spanish-American and World Wars. He was one of Theodore Roosevelt's Rough Riders, and politically he adhered to the Bull Moose bolt of the Republican party returning when "T. R." made peace in 1916.

He was a candidate for Governor of New Hampshire, but was defeated by John G. Winant for the nomination, later aiding in Winant's election.

Born in the Dorchester section of Boston 61 years ago, Colonel Knox has had a long career as a newspaperman.

He became a reporter following his graduation from Michigan State University. He is publisher of the Manchester, N. H., Union and Leader and of the Chicago Daily News.

He was for years General Manager of the Hearst papers.

NAZI RIOT DUE

Hate Speech Tonight

Women Join Fight

By International News Service

Berlin, Aug. 14—The warning, "Stay at home tomorrow night," flashed from Jew to Jew today with the news that more than 25,000 Nazis have bought tickets to hear Julius Streicher, generalissimo of the anti-Semites, in his first major invasion of the capital.

Streicher is to be the guest of local Nazi leaders.

His advent at this time is feared in Jewish circles to be the signal for an intensification of the campaign against them.

Children Boycott Even Customers of Jews

By Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 14—Reports of anti-Jewish manifestations by school children came today from Dortmund.

The sneak up on persons emerging from shops owned by Jews, the reports said and pin to them cards reading:

"I am a traitor to my people because I bought from a Jew."

Julius Streicher, publisher of the vigorously anti-Semitic Der Stuermer of Nurnberg, will make two addresses here tomorrow. After the Sportpalast speech, he will address overflow throngs in the Jewish section.

His appearance has been the subject of frenzied ballyhoo by storm troopers. In consequence, there is a belief that Streicher's appearance will give fresh impulse to the slogan "The Jews Must Go."

WOMEN IN FIGHT

Women, too, have plunged into the drive. A woman writer for a Nazi party news agency rebuked her sex because "there are still women who allow themselves to be misled and shamed by Jews."

"For some weeks we have read about the arrest of Jewish racial offenders," she said.

"We German women read this, not only with bitterness against these men, but also with a painful feeling because of the women and girls involved.

"Is it possible these women find so little love and responsibility for their unborn children that they don't hesitate to have relations with men of other races?"

BOYCOTT ON STORES

Meanwhile the Steel Helmet Veterans' organization remained in the dark as to what action Nazi chieftains propose to take against members and their leader, Franz Seldte, minister of labor in Hitler's cabinet.

A series of trials against Jews charged with money smuggling and violation of the devisen law similar to recent action against Catholic monks and nuns was foreshadowed in the litigation against an Aryan employe of a fugitive Jewish importer of eggs and venison.

Georgz Hanns, the Aryan defendant, was sentenced to two and one half years in jail and fined 20,000 marks.

According to the charge, he "chiseled" a devisen commission from the Reichsbank. The judge explained that his being only the tool of first class criminals saved him a longer term.

7 Nuns, 3 Brothers Put on Trial by Nazi

By Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 14—Ten more members of Roman Catholic organizations went on trial today charged with contraventions of the currency laws.

Three Brothers of Mercy of Montabaur Monastery, having branch establishments in the United States, were accused of illegally transferring various sums aggregating 135,000 marks, including a credit of $3,700 in the Buffalo, N. Y., branch. (The mark is worth about 40c.)

Seven sisters of the Order of the Good Shephard were arraigned for smuggling or concealing an aggregate of 62,000 marks.

Lowell, Aug. 14—Lawrence and Lowell will be linked closer together tomorrow with the official opening of the new highway. Mayor Griffin of Lawrence and Mayor Bruin of Lowell will cut the tape.

'Saturday Night' Seven Times a Week for the 'Quins'

MARIE YVONNE EMELIE CECILE ANNETTE

That good old New England institution, the Saturday night bath, is something the Dionne quintuplets have never been able to enjoy. Every day is bathtub day for them—and an extra ducking during one single afternoon is nothing unusual when this tireless nuisance of a cameraman shows up looking for new pictures. The "quins" don't seem to be any too well pleased just now to be receiving company. Marie is just plain cross and doesn't care who knows about it. Yvonne, Emelie, Cecile and Annette are open-mouthed in the amazement with which they seldom fail to observe the photographer's inexplicable antics. Nurses Lamoreaux and Leroux have their hands full keeping their tiny charges in order. (World copyright, 1935, by NEA Service, Inc., and Boston American).

DORGAN SINGES THE NAZI WINGS

With the whole world looking on to see what official action Germany will take on the Massachusetts protest against religious and racial persecution by the Nazis, another broadside—this one aimed squarely at Hitler—went winging its way across the sea to-

Representative Thomas Dorgan of Dorchester, co-author of the resolution of protest passed by the House of Representatives, delivered, delivered a stinging reply to the complaint of Baron Kurt von Tippelskirch, German consul here.

JOINS CURLEY REBUKE

Adding his voice to the replies given Baron von Tippelskirch by Governor Curley and Speaker Leverett Saltonstall, Dorgan said:

"Massachusetts was the outstanding state at the time of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence and is ready and willing to exercise the right to protest against any nation not allowing religious freedom.

"Despite the fact the German authorities are peeved over the Massachusetts House of Representatives, let me say to Adolf Hitler that if the Reich had the same kind of assembly as in Massachusetts, w'at a blessing it would be to the German people.

"But I am sorry to say that Adol' has his own henchman to persecute the teachers of religious faith.

"As a member of an honorable body of men, it is necessary for me to condemn the activities of the present German administration.

"According to censored German reports, the Massachusetts Legislature has been condemned.

"What a fakee!

"If the German government had a free assembly, where every representative had a right to express his honest opinion, the German government would be in good standing with all the nations of the worl dtoday.

"But the opinions expressed are controlled by Hitler. What a sad state of ffairs!

"The American form of government protects the teachings of any church. Not so with the Nazis."

The German consul, who had protested against the Massachusetts resolution only to be told by Gov. Curley and Speaker Saltonstall that there would be no backing down, entered the controversy a second time when he declared that the Governor and Speaker had violated diplomatic usage.

He takes the stand that Governor Curley and Saltonstall should not have made their replies to him public until he had a chance to read them.

"These letters had not reached my office at 5 p. m. yesterday. Yet I heard about them from newspapermen," said von Tippelskirch. "That's a serious breach of courtesy. It simply isn't done in affairs of this sort. Why, it's not even polite.

"I am very much displeased that correspondence to me is released to the press and public before I receive it.

"Naturally, I will submit a report to my superiors, but I cannot say what the next official step is going to be."

Governor Curley in his communication to the consul said in part:

"I am quite certain the action taken by the Legislature of Massachusetts is but a formal expression of the opinion of the public as a whole."

Neylan to Open Radio Red Fight

By Universal Service

San Francisco, Aug. 14—John Francis Neylan, prominent San Francisco attorney, and militant foe of radicalism, will speak over KGO tomorrow night in a coast-wide hook-up, as the first of several outstanding Californians who will appear on the American Fellowship air programs, it was announced here.

The fellowship, organized to combat subversive elements, will present a series of radio addresses during thenext two weeks, in preparation for an extensive campaign in support of Americanism, Evan F. Lovett, national director announced.

Fiermonte Debs' Delight At Newport

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 14—The New York Daily News says Enzo Fiermonte, whose first, last and only attempt at a flatte comeback was rudely stopped in Hollywood last September, has become the handsome and sought-after socialite at Newport.

Invitations, the newspaper records on its social pages, are beginning to pour in upon him and his wife, the former Madeleine Force Astor Dick, incident to the millionaire colony's tennis week festivities.

The debs, the story runs, were glad for the chance to dance with the former prize fighter, while the stag line moved as one in the direction of his wife, mother of young John Jacob Astor the third, at a recent party.

So successful has been their advent at Newport, says the News, that the Fiermontes have decided to spend the rest of the season there.

Fiermonte's last appearance in the ring was against Lou Kennedy, a tighter of no considerable ability. In the fourth round of what had been billed as a comeback attempt, the referee counted 10 over Fiermonte.

"First Daughter" Will Hays' Guest

By Associated Press

Los Angeles, Aug. 14—Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger, son-in-law and daughter of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, began a week's visit here today with a schedule calling for pleasure, sightseeing—and work for Boettiger.

The couple arrived last night to be met by Will Hays, head of the Motion Picture Producers Association, and Mrs. Hays. Boettiger is an assistant under the film chief.

Mrs. Boettiger said her father, the President, planned to visit the San Diego exposition on his proposed western trip.

HOPSON FACES CONTEMPT PROCEEDINGS IN SENATE

By Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 14—Howard C. Hopson, long missing "master mind" of the Associated Gas & Electric System, invited Senate contempt proceedings today.

He failed to response to a Senate subpoena to appear immediately before the Senate lobby committee.

After waiting more than an hour for the heavy-set utilities magnate to appear on an "instanter" subpoena, the committee announced it would meet again at 3 o'clock (EST) and if he did not show up then it would cite him to the Senate for contempt.

Both Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, and William P. MacCracken, former assistant secretary of commerce, have served jail terms for contempt.

While the committee was waiting a resolution to strengthen its power in questioning Hopson and others was adopted by the Senate.

Service of the writ was made by Joseph McCarthy, agent for the Senate group, who yesterday was prevented from serving the subpoena after the House rules committee adjourned.

Service also came after Chairman Black of the Senate committee, told Hopson's attorney, William A. Hill, of Boston, that "Hopson is coming before this committee."

McCarthy succeeded in serving it after Hopson testified he had "evaded the Senate committee" because it was "a matter of protecting" his health.

"I felt that other employes had given them all the testimony I could give," he added.

WAITING OUTSIDE DOOR

McCarthy was waiting outside the door of the House committee room when Hopson emerged. He stepped forward, held the document before him and said:

Earlier Senator Schwellenbach (D. Wash.) had asked Hill whether Hopson was willing to appear now.

"Without being cited for contempt," Black added. "If necessary, of course we are going to take whatever steps are necessary to produce Mr. Hopson.

"And there will be no agreement with any as to what will be done and how he will be protected."

TELLS OF WHEREABOUTS

Hopson told House investigators, meanwhile, that he was in a Washington hotel last week, registered under a chauffeur's name, while both House and Senate committees were looking for him.

A volley of questions about how much money he spent in the fight against the Utilities Holding Company bill was shot at Hopson, when he appeared before the House committee.

The stout ruler of the associated gas and electric system walked into a huge room in which only a handful of spectators were present.

Among them were several members of the House, and a dozen detectives and policemen and William D. Upshaw of Georgia, once candidate for President on the Prohibition party ticket.

ASKS SENATE COURTESY

Earlier, Collins, talking with news men about the Senate's attempt to serve a subpoena on Hopson, remarked:

"The Senate committee should leave him alone until the House gets through with him. The House committee would have extended that courtesy."

As the House hearing opened Representative Cox (D., Ga.) said newspaper accounts of yesterday's incidents indicated House committee representatives had tried to prevent service of the Senate subpoena.

"I hope that is not true, and so far as I know it is not true," he added.

HILL QUIZZED

On the Senate side, Chairman Black shot a volley of questions at William A. Hill, counsel for Hopson, as to whether he had sought to prevent McCarthy from serving the subpoena on Hopson.

"There is evidence," Black said, "that you pushed yourself in between the committee agent and Hopson."

"I do not think that is correct."

"Didn't you make an effort to prevent it?"

"No."

Hill said he met Hopson yesterday in nearby Alexandria, Va., where he had been directed by J. A. Shields, a New York attorney.

After Black had threatened contempt proceedings against Hopson, he said:

"As one member of the committee it is wholly immaterial whether Mr. Hopson testifies here first or last.

"But is it clear a manifest effort has been made to trifle with this committee. The idea seems to be that somebody is bigger than the courts and the committee and that lawyers can aid with impunity.

"It is my intention to get the committee to report the whole affair to the Senate with the idea that those connected with this affair are properly and speedily punished.

"I do not care to go through with that procedure, but Mr. Hopson must appear."

Hill replied that he had a "distinct feeling I did not interfere with officers of this committee." He added that he had not used "physical violence."

"The evidence showed you did," Black retorted.

Representative Cox (D-Ga.) meanwhile threatened to "kick Hopson out of the House lobby committee unless he withdrew a remark to the effect that a question Cox asked was a "lie."

The House committee flareup came after Hopson agreed that he expected expenditures by the Associated Gas and Electric System against the Wheeler-Rayburn utilities bill "might exceed" $800,000 to $900,000.

Raising his voice, Hopson heatedly replied:

"I resent that, that's a lie."

"Wait a minute," snapped Cox.

"Unless you withdraw that statement, I'll come around there and kick you out of this room.

Senate committee members contended that not only Hopson, but lawyers and officials for the Associated System had been "stalling" with the committee and were in contempt of the Senate.

Hill denied he had physically interfered with service of the subpoena yesterday and contended the law did not require him as a lawyer to report Hopson's whereabouts to the committee.

WITHDRAWS STATEMENT

"All right; I'll withdraw that."

Hopson then told House investigators he had not attempted to avoid their jurisdiction but had sought to evade the Senate lobby committee.

Hopson said:

"I came to Washington expecting to testify before the House committee—no, the Senate committee, I would say—but when I saw what kind of a thing it was, and that another (Associated) official had testified to everything I knew, I didn't think, in justness to myself and family, I should imperil my health until I had had a chance to recuperate. So I went home for several days."

On the Senate side Hill continued to insist that he had not been in contempt.

Black replied that there was something of a criminal nature in the affair, "because the law makes it a criminal offense to interfere with the service of a legal process."

ADVISED AT BOSTON

Hill said he was advised Saturday in Boston by George Lepine, a New York attorney of the firm of Travis, Brownback and Paxon to come to Washington at once. The firm is counsel for Associated.

"Then at 11 a. m., Saturday, Lepine knew Hopson was coming to Washington?" Senator Schwellenbach cut in.

Hill nodded assent. He added he understood the House subpoena was served on Hopson last Friday.

It had been previously reported Hopson was served only last Sunday.

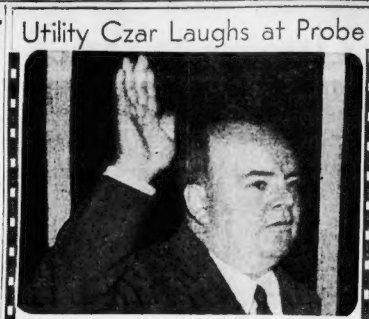
Who Is Hill?

Attorney William A. Hill, representing Howard C. Hopson, utility czar, is a member of the firm of Ogden, Guild, Furber & Hill of 60 State street, this city.

He makes his home in Summit road, Watertown. He is a graduate of Harvard Law School. He is married and the father of two children.

According to his secretary, he is engaged in the general practice of law.

Utility Czar Laughs at Probe



The elusive Howard C. Hopson, head of the Associated Gas and Electric Company, takes the oath as he appears before the House Rules Committee.

DUCE CALLS OUT MORE TROOPS FOR WAR

By Associated Press

Rome, Aug. 14—Italy called to arms today another extensive group of officers and soldiers as the government, indifferent to the tripartite conference in Paris, continued preparations for war in East Africa.

The new order recalled to service those of the classes of 1911, 1913 and 1914 who served under trimester (three-month) obligatory military service.

The only ones excused are priests and other religious workers who make formal demand for exemption attested to by their bishops, and those enrolled in the Blackshirt Legion destined for service in East Africa.

It was learned that Italians living abroad who have volunteered for service in East Africa will be enrolled in the Legion, which will be formed into four battalions of 1000 men each. They will be commanded by Pietro Parini, secretary-general of the organization of Fascist abroad.

Extraterritoriality May Aid Italy in Ethiopia

By Associated Press

London, Aug. 14—The extra territorial rights in Ethiopia, which some powers already enjoy, may be a basis, it was hinted in informed quarters today, for the extension of Italian influence in that nation.

It was indicated that Anthony Eden, minister for League of Nations affairs, may bring up that suggestion in his conversations with Premier Laval in Paris, beginning tomorrow.

Great Britain, the United States, France, Italy, Austria, Belgium, Germany and Hungary have consular courts and full jurisdiction over their citizens in Ethiopia, as foreign nations have in China.

These quarters suggested that the Italian rights under the extra territoriality agreement may be extended to include Italian privileges of colonization in some areas of Ethiopia where the consuls would have supreme control.

Under such an arrangement, Italian citizens would have the same rights as though they were at home.

British Move to Curb Credits to Mussolini

By Associated Press

London, Aug. 14—British exporters hinted today at a move to refuse further credits to Italy because of delayed payments attributed to the expense of military preparations.

It was reported in financial circles that Italy's debt to British importers is $10,000,000 and the creditors may lead manufacturers in the curb of further credits.

Many exporters, especially coal shippers, already have shut down on sales to Italy until overdue payments are made, but this has merely shunted the Italian demand to Germany.

Ethiopia Charges Italy With Plot to Massacre

By Associated Press

Geneva, Aug. 14—Charging that Italy is preparing to massacre a peaceful people, Ethiopia today protested to the League of Nations that she is unable to purchase arms abroad to defend her soil.

On the eve of the all-important political negotiations in Paris, where three leading European powers are meeting to consider measures for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, Ethiopia besought the league's assistance to remove what she called the unjust effect of an arms embargo imposed on her by many nations.

Not a Line!

By International News Service

Genoa, Italy, Aug. 14—Deep mystery today enshrouded some phases of last night's disastrous flood at the towns of Ovada and Molare, in which approximately 1000 persons are dead or missing.

Despite the fact the flood was the greatest Italian disaster since the earthquake of 1932, the Italian press late today had not printed a line about it.

Wades Into River to End Her Life

Scrawling a suicide note on a blank check, Mrs. Gertrude L. Gattman, 68, of Coolidge street, Brookline, waded into the Charles river in Cambridge today and was drowned.

Her body was found in shallow water near the Cambridge Boat Club on Memorial Drive by Sergeant William Marley and Patrolman Jerry McCarthy of the Metropolitan river patrol.

Nearby on the bank they found a Boston bag and a handbag containing 21 cents and a checkbook. On the face of the top check was written:

"Look near Cambridge boathouse for a body."

Mrs. Gattman disappeared yesterday from her lodging house. She had been in poor health and under a doctor's care. Her only known relative is a son, Irving, in Greensboro, N. C.

Agent Surrenders In Methuen

Methuen, Aug. 14—John Ring, Summer street, Haverhill, organizer of the United Shoe and Leather Workers Union, surrendered to Methuen police today on a warrant issued two days ago charging assault and battery.

Ring, with George E. Wilkins, representative of the executive office of the union in Boston, was named in two warrants on complaint of a wood-haul worker, Elvin Nason, of Kingston, New Hampshire.

Lightning Hits Homes

St. George, N. B., Aug. 14 (AP)—Bolts of lightning ripped holes through two homes during an electrical storm here today. Light and telephone service in some sections of the town were cut off.

Viscount Bridgeman Dead

London, Aug. 14 (AP)—Viscount Bridgeman, 71, former secretary of mines, home secretary, and first lord of the admiralty died today.

Hearst Papers Praised For Enlightening People

By Universal Service

Los Angeles, Aug. 14—The Hearst newspapers have been of immeasurable aid to the average man in pointing out that grave dangers lie in governmental interference with business, in unjust taxation and in violation of constitutional rights.

So said Albert L. Deane of New York, president of the General Motors Corporation, here today.

"Every American has a right to be guaranteed the security of opportunity. I heartily disapprove of the 'kill the patient in cure the fever' theory. But I am convinced that the people still believe in democracy and will demand that their legislators keep within the framework of our constitutional system."

Man Saved After Plane Dash, Dies

Flying blind along a radio beam through dense fog, a coast guard plane sped 125 miles to sea from Salem today in a desperate but futile attempt to save the life of a dying fisherman.

Martin Shanahan of Tofts street, Chelsea, stricken member of the crew of the trawler, Penguin, was taken aboard the plane from the Coast Guard Cutter Cosipee and rushed to East Boston airport.

He died of convulsions shortly after arriving at the Chelsea Marine Hospital. The cause of his illness was not determined.

Four hours of blind flying, a landing on heavy seas and a risky take-off into fog figured in the drama.

The flight was the second of its kind performed in four days by the coast guard crew of the big amphibian plane based at Salem.

Lieutenant True G. Miller, pilot of the plane on Sunday's rescue mission, was co-pilot today. Lieutenant Victor Tydlaka piloted the ship which also carried Radioman H. W. Gifford and Mechanic Eugene A. Guenet.

Shanahan was stricken aboard the Penguin today while she was fishing 75 miles east of Provincetown.

PLOT TO KILL COAL BILL

By Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 14—A high Democratic House leader said today he had been informed that the Senate was preparing to adjourn without acting on the Guffey coal stabilization bill.

That information, the leader said privately, was conveyed to him by two New England Senators who told him they had reached such an understanding that Senate Democratic leaders

"The plans," the House chief continued, "apparently are to get everything else out of the way in a hurry, scuttle the Guffey bill, and be ready to adjourn by Thursday of next week."

Girl in Danvers Cycle Crash Dies

Danvers, Aug. 14—Barbara Gauthier, 19, of Ferry street, Medfield, died today in Hunt Memorial Hospital of injuries suffered when a motorcycle on which she was riding crashed into a farm truck yesterday.

Hugh Gretchell, 19, also of Medfield, was reported in serious condition. Police said he was operating the motorcycle at the time.

SIX RESCUED IN BACK BAY FIRE

Dr. Francis O'Brien was overcome by smoke, and six persons, including an infant girl, were rescued today as a two-alarm fire swept through a three-story dwelling in Beacon street, Back Bay.

Dr. O'Brien was trying to save a picture of his father, the late Dr. Thomas J. O'Brien, when he collapsed. He had rushed into the house after returning from the residence of friends to discover his own home in flames.

The blaze started on the first floor of the three-story brick residence and spread rapidly through the building.

Patrolman Thomas McDonough, of the Back Bay station, a former college football player, battered down the door to 497 Beacon street and rescued the women and the child.

The rescued were Mrs. Madeleine Luther, her daughter, Joan, from the first floor; Mrs. Helen Bullock, Miss Barbara Newcomb, from the third, and the Misses Helen Stickels and Frances Miller, roommates, from the second.

Then, with Patrolman Tighe, McDonough rushed into Number 503 to assist Dr. Thomas Broderick, surgeon at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, from his smoke-filled home.

HUNGER, WANT FACE MILL STRIKERS

Salem, Aug. 14—Starvation and the pinch of want hung over the 2200 striking workers of the Naumkeag steam cotton mills in Salem and Peabody today as the management shut the mills indefinitely.

The workers, who yesterday walked out in a body, demanding a 25 per cent increase and improved working conditions, tightened their belts and prepared for a long seige.

The strikers said that they would stay out until their demands were met.

The management of the Pequot and Danvers Bleaching mills said that these demands were "utterly impossible" and would not be met.

Frank E. Raymond, Jr., 22-year-old son of the Essex County sheriff, was beaten.

He had left the mill where he works as an assistant foreman and was set upon by three men, believed to have been strikers, who beat him virtually unconscious and then tried to throw him in the river.

Police sent in a riot call and broke up the fast growing crowd, rescued Raymond and arrested a man charged with assaulting him.

Chicago Official Found Slain in Car

By International News Service

With blood streaming from a bullet wound in his right cheek, Morrison was seated upright on the rear seat, his legs crossed, a cigarette dangling from his lips.

Police said robbery apparently was the motive. The victim's pockets were turned inside out. His

REV. COUGHLIN IN SECLUSION

By Associated Press

Springfield, Aug. 14—Efforts of Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, to seek seclusion in western Massachusetts appeared to be bearing a measure of success today.

He had been expected to pay a visit to Bishop Thomas M. O'Leary of Springfield diocese in this city, but so far as can be learned has not done so and could not be located by newspapermen.

Today it was learned that Father Coughlin had left Great Barrington. Rev. George A. Shea at the chancelry office of St. Michael's Cathedral here said that Father Coughlin had not been there and that there was no appointment for a visit today.

Omaha Owner's Daughter Divorced

By International News Service

Reno, Nev., Aug. 14—Elizabeth Ogden Woodward Stephens has been granted a divorce from Robert Livingston Stephens, New York City and Bernardsville, N. J., socialite.

Mrs. Stephens is the daughter of William Woodward, socially prominent horse fancier and owner of the famed horse Omaha.

New Men's Styles To Make Debut

What the well-dressed Boston man will wear next fall and winter will be definitely established at the style show, to be conducted by the A. Nash Company at the Parker House tomorrow night.

An advance showing of men's fashions will be displayed on living models. Though the event is primarily for the company's New England salesmen, the public is invited.

Mill Shuts Doors

Webster, Aug. 14 (AP)—As the result of a walkout by 60 employes of the carding department of the American Woolen Company plant here yesterday the mill was forced to shut down today.

ROTCH SOCKED AGAIN

G. O. P. Women Jump in Fray

The Massachusetts Women's Political Club today sent a letter of protest to Mayor Mansfield against his support of Arthur G. Rotch, state ERA administrator.

The mayor said yesterday the City Council's order, requesting him to ask President Roosevelt for removal of Rotch, did not impress him as he thought Rotch had done all he could for single women under federal rules.

Miss Florence Birmingham, president of the women's organization, informed the mayor he was mistaken in supposing that Rotch was prevented by federal regulations in withholding jobs from single women.

She said:

Rotch's oft-repeated refrain to this effect misled this organization for months, until the inhumanity of the ruling forced us finally to write to Washington, asking a suspension of the regulation.

"We were astounded to receive a reply signed by Ellen S. Woodward, Rotch's superior in Washington, stating Federal regulations provided neither for special attention to single women nor for exclusion.

"Mr. Mayor, no more damning indictment of Rotch's entire career as ERA administrator could be drawn up than his denial of the barest necessities of life to the thousands of desperately needy single persons and widows all over this Commonwealth.

"His incompetency and incapacity as an administrator he has clearly demonstrated by his ever recurring payless paydays and his inability to distribute ERA food to the needy, tons of which eventually landed in Boston harbor."

DRINKS POISON In Family Row

Despondent over a quarrel with his wife, Frank Janersky, 28, of Juliette street, Dorchester, allegedly drank a quantity of poison in his father-in-law's store in Dudley street, Roxbury.

Welfare expenditures in Boston dropped $836 last week. There were 57 less families on the lists.

HARVEY JOINS MILLEN SUIT

George Stanley Harvey, counsel for the executed Millen brothers, today petitioned superior court in Dedham seeking to become a defendant party to the recent suit filed by the Needham Trust Company.

The bank, in an action naming Murton Millen, Irving Millen, Norma Millen, Abraham Faber, Sheriff Capen and Court Clerk Worthington, seeks to establish its ownership of approximately $10,000 introduced in evidence at the Millen-Faber trial.

The money is held to be loot of the bank robbery.

Harvey states no notice has been served on him, that he is interested in the property and has a right to be heard. His petition will be heard next month.

Happier than she has been for more than a year, Norma Brighton Millen, widow of Murton, today awaited word in Dedham jail as to the definite hour of her release, scheduled for a week from today.

3 MORE SEIZED As Polygamists

Kingman, Ariz., Aug. 14 (US)—Three more arrests were made at Short Creek in the drive to stamp out plural marriages in Arizona's "polygamy strip."

Search was being pressed for three others, a man and two women against whom complaints have also been issued.

Newburyport, Aug. 14—Seven persons were rescued from a motorboat sinking off Salisbury beach. The boat was owned by John Parks of Carter street. Coast Guard arrived just as the boat was filling after having struck a log.

CHISELERS BUSY NRA REPORTS

By Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 14—NRA observers have reported some 12,000 to 13,000 American employers have cut wages or increased hours since the Blue Eagle met its death.

The figures are not official and authorities decline to attach significance to them publicly on the ground that too few companies have been covered and that more time is needed to read the trends fully.

The reports say the predominant type of departure from previous conditions is hour raising. NRA has lists of some 4000 to 5000 employers who are declared to have increased hours since June 1. Whether these employers increased weekly wages accordingly was not shown.

The number of hour increases listed was substantially greater in July than in June, and the week-by-week tabulation in July showed a comparatively steady gain.

It was said the bulk of the wage cutting and hour increasing is among smaller firms.

Fall's Ranch Sold By the Doheneys

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 14—The El Paso Times says it has been informed the A. B. Fall ranch at Three Rivers, N. M., has been sold to the Palomas Land & Cattle Company by the E. L. Doheny interests and that the Fall family has been notified to vacate by August 15.

The ranch of the former Secretary of the Interior was taken over several years ago by Doheny on foreclosure of a mortgage of approximately $250,000.

Eight hundred cattle already have been shipped from the Three Rivers ranch to Palomas ranches in California, the Times will say.

Moonlight Sail Planned By Summer Residents

By BETTY ALDEN

EVEN THE MOST ardent yachting fans will admit that nautical matters have had their full share of space in the news during the past few weeks, what with the W. R. Hearst outboard regatta on the Charles, race week at Marblehead, and the extremely interesting story of the raising of the historic revolutionary war sloop Philadelphia from the depths of Lake Champlain . . .

All these things are so fraught with the romance of the sea that even the landlubbers are now becoming interested in watery pastimes . . . For instance, a group of rusticators has decided to descend from the foothills of the White Mountains and go down to the sea in ships . . . or, more exactly, go down to the lake for a moonlight sail aboard the old steamship Mt. Washington . . .

Moonlight Sail

THE ENTERTAINMENT committee of the Kingswood Golf Club is sponsoring this moonlight sail on Lake Winnepesaukee next Saturday night, August 17 . . . The ship will sail from Pier 1 at the foot of Railroad avenue in Wolfeboro at 8:30 promptly so that the crew of prominent summer colonists of Dublin, Peterboro and the surrounding resorts, may have a long evening of deck dancing, star gazing and games . . .

Mrs. Philip K. Brown (Rachel Grant) of Chestnut Hill, and her brother, George H. Grant, are the special committee in charge of the sail, but they are being assisted by the permanent entertainment committee of the Kingswood Club, including Mrs. W. Wallace Lyon of Scarsdale, N. Y., chairman: Mrs. Calvin Childs of Lexington, Mrs. William P. Underhill of Chestnut Hill, Mrs. George Jenkinson of Denver, Mrs. L. S. Heely and Miss Helen Warren of Wolfeboro, Mrs. Watt Tyler (Priscilla Delano) a recent bride, of Newton Center, and Mrs. J. Lawrence Carroll, Jr., of Mt. Vernon street . . .

The passengers are all planning to wear nautical costumes and among those whose names are already on the sailing list are Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wood of Chestnut Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Philip K. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. John Delano of West Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Norman B. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Rollin Fisher, all of Brookline; Mrs. Wilbur S. Grant of Mt. Vernon street and Peterboro, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Burnham of Winchester . . .

Also the president of the Kingswood Club, Mr. Herman Smith of New York, and his wife who is a sister of Mrs. Charles A. Burnham; Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Penney of Lexington, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Childs, Mr. and Mrs. A. Carleton Potter of Cambridge, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Duane of Brookline . . . Mrs. S. Earle Haines and her daughter, Miss Janet Haines of Merion, Pa., and Peterboro; Miss Virginia Childs of Lexington, Miss Barbara Fisher of Brookline and the three lovely daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Ellis of Waban, the Misses Helen, Libby and Dorothy Ellis . . .

At a nearby table Mr. and Mrs. R. Lentner Sewall of Prides Crossing enjoyed society's favorite pastime with Mrs. Sewall's debutante sister, Louise Stevens, and Robert Knowles . . . Anne Richardson was with an attractive escort and others at this popular dancing resort were Miss Jean Derrick, Mr. W. P. Bonbright of Detroit, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Bertschmann (Connie Percival) of New York, who are visiting Mr. and Mrs. David C. Perceival at Marblehead Neck . . .

Kitty Fiske to Make Debut

THURSDAY, August 22, will be a memorable day for Miss Kitty Fiske, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus H. Fiske of Warren, R. I., and Cataumet, Cape Cod, for on that day she will make her formal bow to the social world at a tea from 4 to 7 at the Dunes Club in Narragansett, followed by a dinner dance at 8:30, served on the porch of the Clubhouse at small tables for eight . . .

In addition to the list of pourers already announced and which includes quite a few well known Boston social leaders, the names of Miss Hope Smith, Mrs. Ruth Sturges, Mrs. Eric Greene and Mrs. Robert Anthony, all of Providence, have been added . . . Mrs. Gardiner Fiske, an aunt of the debutante, Miss Gertrude Fiske, Mrs. Edmund Sears and Mrs. Chandler Robbins are a few of the Bostonians who will serve as pourers . . .

Roger Wellington of Chestnut Hill has been added to the list of ushers for the dinner dance, as have Russell Davis, Samuel Powel, Jr., Benjamin Sturges, and William Innis, Jr., all of Providence, and Peter Lombard of Boston . . . Other young men from Boston who will usher are Chandler Robbins, Walter Fox and Warren Weeks.

Cushman Show

MISS POLLY COTTER will again be the bride in a mock wedding ceremony staged by the Charlotte Cushman Club.

New names have been added to the list of mannequins including Miss Elizabeth Watson, Miss Renee Van Neyenhof Schanck, Miss Susan Means, Miss Patricia Phalen, Miss Evelyn Lilly, Miss Virginia Phalen and Mrs. Weston Adams.

Among those who have recently reserved tables for the afternoon are Mrs. Charles F. Adams, who will entertain a party of 12; Mrs. Albert H. Morse, Mrs. William McKenna, Mrs. George Schanck, Mrs. James C. Duane, Mrs. Myron P. Lewis, Mrs. Ralph D. Cram, Mrs. William M. Davenport, Mrs. Frederick E. Harwood, Mrs. H. R. Everett and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Coburn.

Many distinguished names appear on the board of managers of the Cushman Club, which was organized to provide home-like living quarters to members of the theatrical profession visiting Boston.

(Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer)

MISS VIRGINIA DIX, a visitor from the South who is being feted at many social events, will be one of the models at the fashion show which the Charlotte Cushman Club will conduct at the Fo'cas'le in Marblehead on next Tuesday evening. Miss Dix is the house guest of Mrs. Charles M. Hector of Newton during her stay here.

North Scituate Horse Show to Aid Hospital Fund

VARIOUS ENTERTAINING is being planned for Tuesday, August 20, the day of the tenth annual North Scituate Horse Show, with small luncheons, and dinners being given for visiting guests.

Interesting novelties as well as the regular events will fill the day at the North Scituate Riding Club, on Gannett road.

Many people have taken boxes, including Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Jenney, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burns, Mrs. Hester Mowatt, Mr. Arthur E. Derr and Mr. W. C. Reynolds.

Parking space has been reserved by Mr. W. S. Mullin, Mr. W. S. Callahan, Mr. Ellis Whittemore, Mr. Daniel Tyler, Sr., Mr. George Brown, Mr. Harold Coughlin, Mr. Allan J. Wilson, Mr. J. J. McCarthy, Mr. H. G. Summers and Mr. Underwood.

An attractive group of the young set will sell the programs including Ruth Pope, Virginia Butler, Betty McHugh, Marion Carroll and Grace Gow. Mrs. Charles H. Innes and Mrs. Harold Coughlin will be in charge of tickets for Cohasset, and Mrs. W. B. James will take charge of the Scituate end.

This horse show which is planned to benefit the Children's Sunlight Hospital at Egypt is one of the outstanding summer affairs. Entries are coming in . . . Master Billy Davidson, grandson of Mr. William J. Davidson, president of the hospital, will ride Sweetheart, his famous mount . . . Elise and Ursula Burkhard, attractive daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Burkhard of Oyster Harbors, have both entered saddle horses.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Winship are opening their spacious estate in Wakefield on Sept. 9, for a luncheon and bridge and afternoon garden party with a fashion show, to benefit the Philomathein Club's Boston College Scholarship Fund. Mrs. Winship will be general chairman of the day.

Mr. Benjamin Hallowell Dorman of Lynn will bring his bride of last Saturday to live in Cambridge after October 1. The wedding at St. Stephen's Church in Lynn united in marriage Miss Alice Georgia Merrill and Mr. Dorman, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Dorman of Lynn and Georgetown.

LOVE SETTING WITH MUSIC

LUCY GAYHEART, by Willa Cather.

This latest novel of Miss Cather's does not come up to the high standards which she has set up heretofore.

However, the book does make for pleasant, light summer reading. With her ever-graceful pen Miss Cather has sketched a pleasant tragedy.

It is the story of a beautiful young girl who falls in love with a great singer whom she accompanies at the piano during his practice hours . . . For him, our heroine jilts the wealthy home-town boy.

THE ROSE PETAL MURDERS, by Charles G. Givens.

The fourth estate comes in for it again. In other words, we have another novel written about newspaper men.

Baird, hated by everyone, is murdered in his own office. A member of his crew of reporters helps to solve the mystery of his death but not until more murders are committed.

Books I Have Read and Liked

To get a glimpse of the reading habits of Boston six persons chosen at random were asked what book they have read recently and enjoyed. The answers:

D. B. STANBRO, resident hotel manager, "Cape Cod Yesterdays," by Joseph C. Lincoln.
RICHARD MERRICK, Somerville Street Department, "Life with Father," by Clarence Day.
HENRY I. HARRIMAN, chairman of the board of trustees of the Boston Elevated Railway, "Oil for the Lamps of China," by Alice Teasdale Hobart.
MISS NATALIE SCIGLIANO, college student, "Lucy Gayheart," by Willa Cather.

G. O. P. HITS TAX AS "TINFOIL," SEEKS DELAY

By Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 14—Terming the $250,000,000 tax bill an "ill-timed, ill-starred" measure, Senator Vandenberg (R), Michigan, advocated in the Senate today action be postponed until the next session.

Taking the floor after Chairman Harrison of the finance committee had delivered an explanation of the measure, Vandenberg called the bill a "tinfoil" proposal.

He said President Roosevelt's tax recommendations represented the "exact antithesis of planned economy."

Chairman Harrison of the finance committee, which completely re-wrote the House measure and made it conform more nearly with presidential recommendations, opened debate by explaining the bill.

Democratic leaders predicted passage by Saturday night in virtually the form proposed by the committee.

Efforts to change the measure so that it would raise taxes on small incomes as well as those above $1,000,000 were in store, however.

Harrison said it was estimated the House bill would raise $225,000,000 additional revenue and the Senate committee bill $254,000,000, although the measures differed materially as to rates.

Tube Pipe Break Must Be Fixed

The water pipe in the Sumner traffic tunnel had frozen and could not be fixed because it was deeply embedded in concrete.

Today Carven announced that it was "an emergency" and the pipe had to be replaced right away. So he is taking $5000 from the water division appropriation to employ ERA workers to lay a new water-main above the concrete.

He is not going to wait for the city council to pass an order sent in last week by Mayor Mansfield and tabled for further study.

4 Hurt as Autos Crash in Quincy

Four persons were taken to Quincy Hospital today after their car turned over and collided with another at Wollaston road and Sea street, Quincy.

The injured are Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. Smith, each about 40, Charles Carroll, 45, and Miss Mildred Kelley, 19, all of Bedford street.

Mrs. Edith F. Pearson, Cecilia Pearson and Mrs. Judith Carlson and Lily Carlson, all of Littlefield street, Quincy, occupants of the other car, escaped injury.

Smith was operating the overturned car and Mrs. Pearson the second automobile, police said.

FARMERS GET Less for Milk

Farmers supplying milk to the Boston area received slightly less for their product but sold slightly more during the last half of June than in the first half. A report published by Samuel W. Tator, market administrator showed surplus milk off four cents per cwt.

Budget Bill Up

Boosted $52,000 by the Senate, Governor Curley's supplementary budget of $2,677,280 comes up in the Senate today for enactment. The Senate restored at its previous session two of the items stricken from the budget by the House.

Cameraman Beats Ambulance to Quincy Crash Scene!

Wreckage of the front end of this machine is evidence of the force of a collision in which it was involved in Quincy with another passenger auto. In the second car, which overturned, four persons were injured.

Awaiting arrival of the ambulance, Miss Mildred Kelley, 20, of Littlefield street, Quincy, is near collapse after injury in an auto accident. So soon after the crash did the cameraman arrive that he was able to make this snap-shot of one of the victims on the scene. (Pictures by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

'BLOW BELOW BELT'

Woman Assails Roosevelt Tax Bill

By JEAN NELSON PENFIELD
General Counsel, Women Investors in America, Inc.
(Written expressly for Universal Service)

Every patriotic citizen should be concerned that such fantastic and unprecedented levies on capital investments as well as income should be proposed at a time when industry is struggling to get on its feet, and when the supreme need of the country is to encourage normal employment conditions.

We should not be too ready to assume that only millionaires would be seriously affected by the proposed tax policies.

The fact is that the proposed graduated corporation income tax would directly affect the incomes of millions of small investors, while the inheritance tax proposed by the House, which would impose a tax on individuals in addition to the present estate taxes, would be borne by both rich and poor.

The claim by the President that the proposed taxes would be levied "in proportion to ability to pay" is fallacious, as the proposed graduated corporation income tax represents a levy on the size of the corporate income without regard to the relative capital invested.

This might mean a heavy levy against the equities of stockholders in a big corporation earning only one per cent on its capital, while a small close corporation might be earning 20 to 35 per cent on the capital invested, and get off with a light tax.

This provision violates every principle of equity, and in no way conforms to the theory that the levy is in proportion to the "ability to pay."

Congress should delay all action on the tax bill until the subject of the budget comes up in January, 1936. At that time, when curtailment of the spending program must necessarily be faced, a complete and therefore more equitable fiscal policy can be adopted.

PRINCE ASSAILS 'THRIFTY' TAX

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 14—Frederick H. Prince, Boston capitalist and chairman of Armour & Co., sailed today for Europe after voicing his hopes for smaller taxes and less government investigation into business.

"It is unfortunate the government is engaged in so much investigation," Prince said. "They have already investigated enough and it is now time for a stand-still and a breathing spell."

"Let's take stock and see where we are," he added.

"Undoubtedly the time will come for a change for the better. It may not be far off. Certainly we have adjusted ourselves to our losses and the new conditions.

"All any business man is doing now is looking forward to the time that he can go ahead. All these investigations only have the effect of holding back business. I am certain that as soon as Congress adjourns things will brighten up," he added.

Continuing, the financier stated: "Taxes today are all out of proportion to earnings. How can the business man expand his business and give employment to more labor, if this new-fangled idea of soaking the thrifty is to be the program?"

No Wage Action

Painters' Union 11 of the Painters, Decorators, and Paperhangers of America, failed to take any action on the question of WPA wage scales at a meeting in Wells Memorial.

VICTIM HIS BROTHER

Police 'Rooky' Gets Tragic News

"We received a call about a man having been killed by a train near the Winchester station. Any identification?"

Fifteen minutes later O'Neill called again.

The victim was his brother, Percy M. Reardon, 30, of Westley street, Winchester. He was apparently struck by a train while taking a short cut across the tracks to a lunch room for an early breakfast.

Consideration on the part of Patrolman James E. Farrell was the one thing that prevented Patrolman Reardon's being sent to the scene of the tragedy upon receipt of the first call. Without knowing the identity of the victim, Farrell went alone because he thought Patrolman Reardon, a recent addition to the force, would be upset by viewing the body.

Speeding Costs John Roosevelt $10

By International News Service

Irvington, N. Y., Aug. 14—John Roosevelt, youngest son of the President and Harvard undergraduate, forfeited $10 bail today when he failed to appear in court here to answer a charge of speeding.

Young Roosevelt was arrested yesterday by Motorcycle Patrolman Peter A. Gorey, who said he clocked the youth at 54 miles an hour.

Gorey said he stopped John's car after a half mile chase.

"Are you the President's son?" he asked.

"Yes," replied young Roosevelt.

Gorey said young Roosevelt seemed chiefly concerned that his father would hear of the matter and seemed pretty sure "he won't like it."

DEFENSE AIDE ORDERED HELD

Thomas Fitzpatrick, of Cambridge, was arrested in Cambridge district court today while testifying for the defense in an attack case. He also was charged with attack.

Fitzpatrick was a witness for Frank Lavelle, of Suffolk street, Cambridge, accused of attacking Joseph Pyle, of Pine street, and Mrs. Marion G. Steitz, of School street, both of Cambridge, on August 2.

Pyle testified four men accosted him and demanded his money and that Lavelle held his hands while another hit him. He singled out Fitzpatrick as the man responsible.

Mrs. Steitz said she went to Pyle's assistance and Lavelle knocked her down.

Fitzpatrick claimed Pyle pulled a knife in an argument with Lavelle. He added he hit Pyle in self defense and seized the knife.

Hoover Just A Lost Boy On Common

"Me Fong. How young? Too young!"

These days when presidential candidates have to be so careful, that was probably a dangerous statement for Herbert Hoover to make—especially to a large crowd on Boston Common today.

But Herbert is only four—and his last name is Fong—and he speaks only a soft Chinese and "pidgin."

The statement was immediately taken up, however, by Vincent Di Marco, who expostulated in very animated Italian.

Vincent, also four, threatened a party split, when Patrolman Michael Logan, who speaks neither a fluent Chinese nor an accurate Italian, took a hand.

In fact he took both hands—Fong in one and Vincent in the other—and escorted them to Milk street station, where they were fed.

Parents, who had been shopping, later called for them, by which time both were speaking with a slight brogue.

10 French Girl Scouts Coming

Boston ought to get a thrill next week, when it has an opportunity to entertain a group of 10 charming French girls, straight from Paris.

They are leaders in the French Girl Scout movement, coming to this country through the interest and cooperation of Dorothy Canfield Fisher, the author, to see what this country has to offer in the way of social welfare institutions.

Pair Found Guilty In Police Attack

Frank Edgerly, 24, of Newbury avenue, Medford, and Stephen La-Cicero, 40, Willis avenue, Medford, were today sentenced to six months each by Judge Francis J. Brine, in Somerville District Court, for beating a police officer. Judge Brine said:

"We do not maintain a police department as a target for public attack."

LOVE BLIND

Mary Faces Problems

SYNOPSIS

Young and beautiful Mary Shannon, secretary in the A. A. Healey Steamship Company, is broken-hearted when socially prominent "Jamie" Todd, Jr., becomes engaged to Nesta Grainger, one of his own set.

To add to Mary's sorrow, her Aunt Willie, brooding over a prank her co-workers played on her, commits suicide. Then Mr. Shannon loses his position. Wealthy Aunt Mamie comes to the rescue with an offer to set the family up on a chicken farm in Petaluma.

Mary's parents move, but she remains in Oakland because of her work. She lives at Mrs. Henry's boarding house with a friend, Margot Patterson. Mary swore she would change and did —no more timidity.

She was going to get all she could out of life like Margot who considered it a waste of money to pay for your own entertainment. Milton Holden, an insurance broker, bald and fat, but a good dresser, comes to the boarding house.

All the girls vie for his attentions. Edwin Samson, Mary's new manager, who took Stephen Bennet's place when the latter was put in charge of the Seattle office, disapproves of his wife's friendship for Mary, fearing Mrs. Samson will meet other men through her.

However, it is Mary who meets several men through Mrs. Samson. Margot warns Mary against being too chummy with Mrs. Samson and her friends Jackson Carter and Al Pankhurt. Mary envies Margot her brains and capacity for hard work. She wishes she had a little more talent for something.

The trouble was that her family and friends had spoiled her and made her think she was good. Take the music lessons, for instance; Ma thought she played with "expression," yet she never had the least bit of feeling for the piano.

CHAPTER XV

Ma never did realize that she'd been chosen to play at the school entertainments because she was a pretty little girl who could be counted on to wear a frilly white dress and look well, even if she didn't sound so well, on the platform.

And why did she get the solo parts in dancing school? Because she was a young Pavlowa like Ma and Aunt Willie thought? No!

Because she had a certain superficial cleverness that helped her to bluff through the steps she didn't know just right, and because Ma was one of the few mothers the teacher could count on to get new and expensive costumes for the new dances.

Same with her part in the senior play at high school. She was "leading lady" because she was popular and pretty, and the executive board pulled for her, that was all.

For that matter, she wasn't so terribly pretty. Lots of girls were prettier than she, but they didn't know how to fix themselves up. She had always known.

Even when she was too little to comb her own hair, she'd fuss with it after Ma got through, until she arranged it more becomingly.

Mary's Problems

Yes, and then she'd waked up to the realization of how selfish she'd been . . . love had done that for her, had made her soft enough to see it.

But it hadn't made her smart enough to see that she'd never be Mrs. James Todd, Jr. She'd thought that love would bridge the social gap between them, that he'd cared enough to make her his wife whether his family liked it or not.

Well, he'd shown her. She'd lived and learned.

She knew now that that was just a fairy tale. She knew that she was just one of millions, just a pretty girl, without any particular talent, or brains, or education, or social background.

What she got, she'd have to fight for . . .

If she didn't struggle she'd be like a million other plodding office girls, working, going without this or that, hoping . . . getting older, less desirable . . . nothing but an occasional petting party to liven up life.

Unless she had a little luck, and someone loved her again . . . if that was ever to be . . .

And if it was, why couldn't it be NOW? NOW, while she still ached from the pain of losing Jamie, while s'e was still homesick for the folks, and she was sort of experimenting, marking time, waiting for something to happen . . . why couldn't she MEET someone now?

It didn't have to be a rich boy, nor a terribly handsome one . . . She didn't mean all the things she told Margot—she wasn't just on the make!

If she could meet somebody who had some ambition, and was willing to work up . . . She could be such a help to someone like that! Dress well, look pretty, be domestic, too.

She'd always had a knack for arranging flowers, fixing up a house, and Ma said she had the makings of a good cook. Children, too. She'd even like to have a baby or two, if the right boy...

She Must Go On

Yes, the right boy...

There isn't any!

She'd been working almost a year now. People say you meet young men in business. She certainly hadn't.

She hadn't met a single, solitary man she ever LIKED, except some of the stevedore bosses and officers off the ships, and they were all married . . . unless, of course, you counted Bennet, but she wasn't quite dumb enough to fall for him. She'd stopped believing in Santa Claus.

Well, she'd just have to go on, getting as much fun as she could . . . as cheaply.

She'd never been one of those promiscuous petters. If she sinned for petting it had been because it meant something to her.

But now . . . she thought about Milton Holden, holding her hand in the dark of the theater, looking proprietary as he steered her into the Bal Tabarin afterwards . . . the very first time he took her out.

Well, what did it matter? She'd had trouble enough landing him —every girl in the house trying for him, too. He'd paid for the show and the food. He had to get SOMETHING for his money!

* * *

It was Friday—fish night at Mrs. Henry's.

The odor of frying fish and cauliflower greeted her, as she turned the key in the lock, and entered the hall.

Mary usually hated fish nights, but it would have taken more than fish and cauliflower to dampen her spirits tonight.

Jackson Carter had driven her home. This was the second time he had happened to pass in his big, cream-colored phaeton as she was standing on the corner waiting for the California street car.

"When are you and Laila going to drive over to Yosemite with us for the week-end? I'm beginning to think you're just spoofing us!" he had said, laughing.

Milton Repulsed

Of course, she hadn't the least intention of going to Yosemite with him and Al Parkhurst, though Laila swore it would be perfectly all right. But Laila had done all the promoting and talking about it, and until now she hadn't thought the boys were any more serious about it than she was.

It didn't make any difference, but it was sort of exhilarating to know you could go if you wanted to.

It was nice to live in a house you weren't ashamed of, too. On the outside at least there was nothing to suggest the boarding house about the Henry's place. Some terribly rich and important people had built it for a home. It must have been lovely then.

It was still lovely. Especially the hall, with the great, winding stairway, the little leaded-glass windows, the gleaming parquet floors.

She whistled a little, just because she was happy, as she walked up the stairway, leisurely, thinking about Yosemite that she'd never seen.

Milton Holden must have heard her, for he came out of his room, which was at the head of the second floor landing, tying a gorgeous garnet silk dressing gown as he came.

"How about a little ride tonight? Full moon, made to order!"

A minute ago she'd have jumped at the idea, but now that it was presented to her, she didn't want it.

"Oh, I'd love to, but I've got to do some washing and ironing tonight. See you at dinner!" she said, and hurried on up the stairs.

"He's got a heck of a nerve," Margot said, "What does he think he is, Romeo? Why should you want to look at a moon with him? Let the Fricks have him, if that's his style. Well, you live and learn every day. I took him for a spender!"

In Two Autumnal Moods

By ANNICE BRINK

IT'S CALLED "Regimental" because of the bright bar across the pocket, but this two-piece knit suit typifies the autumn girl, the vivacious girl whose sparkle rivals that of winey October air. It's for football, for class, for any girl who owns or wants a swagger coat. And if you did not know it cost less that eight dollars undoubtedly you'd believe it to be a hand-kit. Mushroom brown or cedar green are smart. The felt hat (under four dollars) has a crown that's shallow in back, but points upward in front.

THE MORE ferocity nail head trimming can assume, the smarter—when just a touch of it is used, as in this frock, to highlight a belt and neck line. And even Mr. Mars wouldn't mind having some of these on his well-known bludgeon. Cherry wine rough crepe is slimly fashioned in a flared tunic, and with a hint of puff on the sleeves, at the shoulder. The frock is under seven dollars, the belle hat around five. Miss Gladys Willar of Brookline models for us. For shopping details phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her.

MADGE ASKS TO HAVE BOYS AT QUESTIONING

CHAPTER 421

"HANK!" I gasped, as my husband's young nephew said that Samuel Brixton had shinned up a ladder to the nursery balcony after his encounter with the prowling Chinese, and entered the window of the room at the left. "Are you sure? Sure—I mean—that the man who went up the ladder was Mr. Brixton?"

"Surest thing you know," Hank said, and Bill nodded assent.

"We were close behind him from the time he began to talk to the Chinese," Bill said, "and we couldn't mistake his voice. Besides, when he was on the balcony, the light from the window made a sort of silhouette of him, and it just couldn't have been anybody else."

He stopped, as at a sudden thought, and looked at me with a startled query in his eyes.

"Is—is there anywrong wrong about him?" he asked. "We just thought he'd noticed the flashing, or heard something, and come down to investigate. We thought maybe he'd locked the door on himself without meaning to, and had to get back the best way he could. Was that his room, the one on the left, where he climbed in?"

WHERE SHOTS WERE FIRED

"No, of course not," I answered, "there's nothing wrong with him. And you are doubtless right about his reasons for coming up the ladder, for that room on the left was occupied by the Brixtons last night."

The faces of both boys registered relief at my words, and belief in them, and I deflected the subject of Samuel Brixton.

"You haven't yet told me why you went to that particular glade," I said.

"It was just a long chance," Bill answered. "But when those Chinese asked Mr. Brixton to tell Lee Chow they would meet him at the place in the woods he knew, it just struck us that they might mean the place from which Uncle Dicky was shot. So we went on down there, and you know the rest as well as we do —better, probably."

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE

The boys' story had been another link in the chain of events connecting Lee Chow with the attempt on Dicky's life. But I realized, when they had finished, that they had provided no real proof.

"Do you think we can go down and listen to those men in the basement?" Bill asked hesitatingly.

"I will ask my father at once," I said, rising. "but, didn't you hear those men talk in the glade?"

"We didn't hear them speak anything but Chinese there," Bill answered, "and then the voices always sound alike. But I'm sure if we heard them speak any English words, we would know at once if they were the men we heard last night."

"Stay here," I directed, "and I will come back and tell you what the decision is."

I went directly to my father's room, and found, when I had knocked and had been bidden to enter, that both Dicky and Harry were there, evidently in serious conference, for there was a grim, determined look upon all three faces. I quickly told them the story which Hank and Bill had related to me, and proffered the boys' request.

Both Dicky and Harry looked at my father when I had finished, and I was not surprised, for I knew that with him rested the final decision upon any point in a problem on which he was working.

"Tell them to come up here," he said after a pause. Then he looked at Dicky and Harry significantly.

THE "THIRD DEGREE"

"We'll take them down first, when we take out the guns," he said. "It will be safe enough for the boys, for we'll take no chances upon loosening the bonds of those fellows. And it certainly won't be advisable to have the boys there later, if those chaps refuse to talk."

"How are those boys going to get back to Worcester?" he asked. "Fly?"

I waved my hand airily at him. "I'm going to drive them to Patchogue to catch a train connecting with the New York sleeper for Worcester," I said. "I want to start as soon as the boys have listened to the Chinese."

"You're not going alone," Dicky said authoritatively, "and yet—you need me here, don't you, Chief?" he turned to my father deferentially.

"Later, yes," my father said, "But after the boys listen to them, it will do the men downstairs no harm to meditate a while upon the great desirability of frank speech. When you come back will be time enough to begin to persuade them of the error of their ways."

RETURNING A RING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am engaged to a young man, and very much in love with him. Now he has "walked out on me" —that's the best expression for it I know—and is going out with all the girls that will go out with him. I can't understand his sudden change, and I still love him deeply.

I have his ring still, and I am in doubt about what to do about keeping it.

Should I send it to him, or should I see him and try to have an understanding talk with him? I hate to give up the ring, for it meant all my happiness and love, but I feel that I cannot keep it under the circumstances.

UNHAPPY

It's mighty cold comfort for me or for any one else to tell you now, when you are already so unhappy with such cruel treatment, that it's fortunate for you to have this cruelty revealed now rather than after marriage to such a cad.

His lack of character and decency is the stuff of which miserable marriages are made, and your unhappiness, if you could get far enough away from it to analyze it, would reveal to you that this man will not change his spots."

On the outcome of this talk you would decide what to do about giving him back the engagement ring. If there is nothing of this kind to account for his caddishness, then I suggest that you return the ring to him at once, with a note explaining its return.

REFRIGERATOR MEALS HAVE WINNING APPEAL

Kitchen-Tested Recipes

FROM MARTHA LEE'S WEDNESDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WAAB

MISS Margaret Fossett, director of the Home Service Department of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, in her interesting demonstration at the Martha Lee class today, gave many suggestions for the use of the refrigerator in meal service.

There isn't a phase of cookery which is not aided by the use of a good refrigerator, and it makes meal preparation much simpler, more interesting and economical.

Here two menus typical of what we call "refrigerator meals," suggested by Miss Fossett with the recipes for some of the dishes.

LUNCHEON MENU
Clam Bisque
Chicken Salad Supreme
Refrigerator Muffins
Ice Cream Dessert

DINNER MENU
Tomato Juice Sherbet
Fish, Santa Barbara Style
Paprika Potatoes
String Beans
Blushing-Rose Salad
Cottage Pudding with Hot Fudge Sauce

CHICKEN SALAD SUPREME

2 cups diced chicken
½ cup sauteed mushrooms
1 cup diced celery
½ cup chopped salted almonds
8 slices of pineapple
1 cup mayonnaise

MOLDED ASPARAGUS RING

2 tablespoons gelatine
½ cup cold water
½ cup vinegar
2 cups boiling water
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
Chicken salad
1 large can asparagus tips

Soak gelatine in cold water 5 minutes. Add vinegar, sugar, salt and boiling water and stir until sugar and gelatine are dissolved. When the mixture begins to stiffen, pour a small amount into a ring mold which has been rinsed in cold water, and let stand until firm. Place asparagus tips around the side of the mold close together, the tip ends down. Then pour in more gelatine and let stiffen. Place second row of asparagus tips. Cover with remaining gelatine. Chill in mechanical refrigerator. Unmold. Fill center of mold with chicken salad. Serves 8.

REFRIGERATOR MUFFINS

¼ cup shortening
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
2 cups flour
4 tablespoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk.

Cream shortening and sugar, add egg well beaten. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Add alternately with milk. Pour into well-greased muffin pans. Store in mechanical refrigerator. One pan may be baked for a meal, and remaining pan any time within a week. Bake in a 375 deg. F. oven for 25 minutes. Whole recipe makes 18 small muffins.

FISH—SANTA BARBARA STYLE

6 slices fish, fillet of halibut
2 tablespoons fat
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup water
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon onion juice
3 chopped pimientoes.

Arrange fish in greased baking dish. Melt fat, add flour and salt, then water, vinegar, onion juice and pimientoes. Stir until mixture boils. Pour over fish, and bake in 375 deg. F. oven for 45 minutes.

Feathers TO TICKLE The CHIN

By DOROTHY ROE

Usually made of curled ostrich in pastel tones, they add a new note of pleasant madness to the whirling dervish of fall fashions. Accessories may make or mar your fall costume.

Feathers lead the parade. You match the ones on your hat to those on the cuffs of your gloves. Or if your hat is trimmed with nail heads, glass balls or gold cabochons, these too are repeated on your glove cuffs.

You may hang things around your neck this season—muffs, or fans, or necessary articles like vanity case and lipstick, may be suspended from your neck by a jeweled chain, with which the shops already are supplied.

Tassels of gold braid are new for finishing touches to daytime dress or dinner gown. Wishbone clips, worn upside down to keep the luck in, are smart in yellow gold, to wear with black.

There are elaborate belts, sometimes six inches wide, made of everything from patent leather to cellophane, to dress up your fall sports frocks. Belts of silk cord with gold or silver clasps add sparkle to afternoon frocks.

And then there is the new fad for outlining lapels in cream-colored soutache braid.

Metallic Jerseys

SOFT angora jerseys with a woven metallic thread are new and dazzling for sports things, and black crepes with a shine of silver make the outstanding daytime dresses of the season.

Then there are the brilliant fabrics for formal fashions, such as shiny jacquard crepe with a silk back and silver or gold surface.

Other brilliant metallics are combined effectively with lustrous rayon satins, pastel shades being important, with delicate flower tracery in silver and gold.

"SALADA" The Perfect Tea for ICED TEA

ADVICE on LOVE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX and NELL BRINKLEY

On Way To Forming A Triangle

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When I visit my sister, her husband and I have a glorious time—kiss and call each other net names.

My sister thinks we're just fooling, but our feeling for each other has gone farther than that.

Is it wrong when I let him kiss and hug me? I don't know whether he's serious or not, but he seems to enjoy it. As a matter of fact, so do I. I don't wish to be disloyal to my sister.

KITTY.

If you don't wish to be disloyal to your sister, cut out the love-making and the visits, too, since you've asked my advice. Sometimes these affairs, begun in fun, wind up in the eternal triangle.

• • •

MISCHIEF-MAKING MOTHER-IN-LAW

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We were the happiest family in the world, I believe—my husband, my four children and I. Then he and Janie fell in love. Janie is a cousin, unmarried, pretty. At my wits' end, I told my mother-in-law about this, but instead of standing by the children and me, she's all for breaking us up and having him marry Janie.

She does not consider that our home will be wrecked and the children run wild on the streets, get into bad company and wind up as racketeers, most likely, while I take some pitiful job which will keep me away all day.

How can a man's mother be like that, and have no mercy on little children thrown adrift? My husband doesn't make enough money to give us an allowance. Janie has a little money of her own, and my husband's mother is all for this young, unmarried girl and against me.

DISTRAUGHT.

You seem to have drawn the evil, mischief-making mother-in-law of fiction, my dear child; and let me tell you, the type is unusual. Most mothers-in-law are for keeping the home together, and have a pride in their grandchildren. But certainly, if the husband is worth his salt, he is not going to desert his family and let his children run the streets while he takes up with this young woman.

This will also answer the letter of a lady whose husband drinks to excess.

• • •

THIS YOUNG LADY HAS PROPOSED TO HIM—STILL HE HESITATES

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I want your advice badly. I like this girl real well, and we've been going together for several months. She tells me that the only way she can be happy is if I marry. She's a nice girl, but I expected to do the proposing.

UNCERTAIN.

Some men are so slow about coming to the point that girls feel obliged to take this extremely delicate matter into their own hands, and put the question squarely. If you like the girl and expect to marry her anyhow, I don't see what difference it makes if she has beaten you to the proposal.

• • •

SHE'S IN LOVE WITH THE BOSS'S SON

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Four years ago, when I was 19, I divorced my husband for good and sufficient reasons. I've never cared for another man until lately, when I fell in love with the boss's son. We work side by side in his father's business. After hours we go motoring. But I feel this is wrong, as he is married and has several children. I do not wish to be the cause of breaking up his home.

It isn't fair to his wife, and it isn't fair to me, as I am what is known as straight.

I am glad you see things so fairly and squarely and that to continue with this arrangement is as unfair to you as it is to the man's wife and children. Girls who are straight cannot reconcile home-wrecking with their ideals. It is heroic treatment to prescribe, but it would be better for all parties concerned if you took your courage in both hands and got another job.

Fall Trimmings

You'll be seeing patent trims on the first fall felt hats, and patent leather clips in black, white and vivid colors to wear on your dress, your handbag or your glove.

It's all in line with the glitzy character of the new season, which features cellophane fabrics, shiny metal lames and brocades for evening, brilliant "black coal" fabrics for formal wraps, cellophanes which look like sequins and sequins that look like cellophanes.

"A YOUNG MAN MARRIED IS A YOUNG MAN MARRED!" By Nell Brinkley

How many "quotes" that are untrue have been accepted and said, for long years because they sounded "pat," were witty, and perhaps expressed some clever cynic's passing mood!

Among the down-hearted quotations about marriage and love is this one. And even those who quote it do not seem to mean it. Look at the compliments that are paid to marriage by the countless flocks who remarry, when once one marriage is done.

None of the young married men—butchers, bakers, carpenters, newspapermen, builders, that I know, count themselves "marred."

Their lives may be no picnic—but they can GO ON PICNICS that are real ones—and what dyed-in-the-wool bachelor can? All alone? And if he goes on one with his girl-friend everybody knows what that leads to!

To being a young man married—and made. Made happier, made more ambitious, made stronger, made more of a man.

Beauty for Your Type

HINTS FOR THE TALL, ANGULAR WOMAN

TALL and angular!

If that's your type, make the most of it.

Be stunning, be stately, be smartly dashing. Center attention on your slender height, but not on angularity of face or figure.

When the tall, slender woman looks in her mirror, what ought she to see? For the answer, look above—at the woman in the becoming dark dress. But what if she's confronted with the angular person in the striped dress? As you can see, everything's wrong with that costume—for the tall, slim woman. The stripes and unbroken lines accentuate her height. The narrow, triangular hat makes her face look thin, and consequently older.

What must the tall woman do to look slender, but not angular? She'll go in for curves and softness, for round or cowl necks, for sleeves with fulness. She'll remember that dropped or dolman sleeves are becoming to narrow shoulders, and that thinness above the waist calls for plenty of fulness across the chest. When tunics are in, she'll wear them beautifully—peplums also. She'll be partial to hats with wide, not too regular brims. Her accessories will be on the bold side—large pocketbooks and gloves with generous cuffs. For sportswear she'll probably go in for tweeds and swagger coats.

In selecting "dress-up" clothes, the tall, slender woman will choose fabrics with some "body"—heavy crepes, for instance. Satins she'll avoid, because shiny materials throw revealing highlights on the framework of the body.

Problem of Two Suits

By MRS. CULBERTSON

The question of what to do with a strong two-suited hand when the opponents have opened the bidding is often a vexing problem.

The informatory double does not provide a satisfactory answer for two reasons: first, a two-suited hand usually lacks ability to support the third suit which is, of course, the one partner will most probably bid.

Second, a pre-emptive raise of the opening bid immediately following the double may rob the doubler of an opportunity to show both his suits.

Hence, in the Culbertson System the Jump Overcall is a strength bid. Using it in this fashion, West was able to secure the best result in today's hand.

East and West vulnerable.

	♠ J 10 8 6 2 ♡ K 9 3 2 ◇ 7 ♣ J 3 2
♠ — ♡ A Q J 8 6 4 ◇ A K J 4 3 ♣ 8 7	North West East South	♠ 9 7 4 3 ♡ 7 ◇ Q 10 8 5 ♣ 10 9 6 4
	♠ A K Q 5 ♡ 10 5 ◇ 9 6 2 ♣ A K Q 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	3 ♡ (1)	4 ♣ (2)	Pass
Pass	5 ◇	Pass	Pass
5 ♠ (3)	Double (4)	Pass	Pass
Pass

(1) Showing a hand with either a strong two-suiter or a strong rebiddable suit and unbalanced distribution.

(2) A pre-emptive raise.

(3) Against West's obvious two-suiter, South cannot count more than two tricks, despite his strong hand. Therefore correctly bids five spades as a sacrifice.

(4) West cannot afford to pass since partner might construe such action as forcing and two losing clubs seem to bar all hopes of Slam.

West opened the King of diamonds and East dropped the five. South false-carded with the six, realizing the danger of a heart ruff and doing his feeble best to coax West to continue diamonds.

The bidding, however, had indicated East preferred diamonds to hearts, since he had failed to return to West's first bid suit.

Under the circumstances, there could be no reason why East should want a diamond continuation and, since South thought it necessary to false-card, West saw the possibility in a heart shift.

He therefore played the Ace of hearts and followed with the Queen, enabling East to take the setting trick by ruffing.

Note that if West had used an informatory double instead of a jump overcall, North's pre-emptive four-spade bid would have been most embarrassing.

If West had bid his strongest suit, five hearts, North could double, and this contract would be defeated at least two tricks.

An "All-Season" Dress

By MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9339

Marian Martin had leisure hours in mind when she designed this graceful afternoon frock for the woman of larger proportions.

The soft jabot cascades down the bodice in graceful folds, concealing those extra pounds and curves.

Crepe is a perfect medium for this pattern, but in satin you'd have an all-season "best dress."

Pattern 9339 may be ordered only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires four yards 39-inch fabric.

Ideal Skin Freshener

Mild Tonic For All Types of Skin

By JULIET SHELBY

NO HARD and fast rule covers the use of skin tonics. In fact, the choice depends upon the type of skin you are endowed with and the climate in which you are living.

Take, for instance, Glenda Farrell's choice. This pretty and amusing Warner Brothers star uses a mildly astringent skin tonic, even though she has an oily skin.

This is contrary to the suggestions of most cosmeticians. But Miss Farrell finds that the drying climate of Hollywood partly counteracts her oily skin conditions and that stronger astringents only irritate her face.

The method of skin care is quite simple. She washes her face every night with soap and water and then applies a little skin-food cream. In the morning she removes the cream with this delightful skin lotion.

During the day, as she cleanses her face with cream, she uses the lotion again. Her skin has a lovely smoothness, so her method is particularly good for her type of skin.

If you have an oily skin, perhaps Glenda Farrell's method will suit you, too. This same refreshing lotion is suitable for the normal and slightly dry skin, and I know women who use it instead of water during cold weather.

Any skin lotion or astringent should be applied after a cream cleansing and should never be used in place of the latter routine. Moisten a piece of absorbent cotton in cold water and then dip it into the lotion. Pat it freely over your face and neck and pat it into the skin for a few minutes with your fingertips or a gentle patter. The surplus may be blotted off with a linen towel.

If your face appears slightly flushed, blotched or reddened, do not be alarmed. It will tone down in a moment or two, and your skin will be refreshed and tingling with healthy circulation.

My only warning about skin lotions is that you be cautious in your choice. It is better to initiate you skin with a mild astringent; if you find it is not sufficient to combat an oily condition, then chose a more potent preparation.

If you wish to know the name of the skin lotion used by Glenda Farrell, call Miss Shelby, Liberty 4000, or write in her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Answers to Readers' Beauty Queries

Q—What causes a sallow complexion? I am only 25 years of age, but my complexion is dull and colorless. I have tried using masks and while they lighten up my skin for a while, their effect is not lasting. Have you any suggestions?

Elizabeth A., Walpole.

A—Sallow skin is due to digestive trouble or a sluggish elimination. Every morning before breakfast take a glass of cold water to which has been added the juice of half a lemon and a pinch of salt. Cut down entirely on rich pastries, and eat plenty of vegetables and green salads. No external treatment will do a bit of good until you get your blood circulating.

Question: What shade of powder should I use? I have brown hair and brown eyes. Do you think that a fresh colored powder is really suitable in these times. I have always used either a flesh or brunette shade, but think that possibly I might find a more becoming tone. Would a green-toned powder be suitable?

Jean M., Revere.

Answer: Time was when there were three kinds of powder—white, brunette and flesh. Elderly ladies used white and retained their appearance of respectability. Brunettes used ochre, blondes the flesh tint. We've stepped along since then, however. Cosmetic counters show powders that seem to include all the tints of the rainbow. It's fun trying them out. Without knowing the color of your skin tone, it would be impossible to suggest a suitable shade for you. Green is likely to be dangerous for daytime wear, but on a red-head at night it's magic.

Question—Is there any particular method one should use in caring for a new tooth brush. Just what kind of care should it receive? Mrs. D. T., Boston.

Answer—When you get a new brush, soak it for two hours in a salt water solution. That will clean it thoroughly, and make the bristles firm. After it is used, rinse in cold water, shake, and hang up so that the bristles will drain. Every brush should have a twin. Then one is always dry, ready for use.

Question—I wrote to you a while ago regarding artificial fingernails. You sent me the trade name of the nails, but now I would like to know if they are used for the purpose of breaking one of the habit of biting their nails? And can one use them while nails are in the process of growing out?

Marjorie P., Somerville.

Answer—Artificial finger nails can be worn over either short or long nails. If you have acquired the habit of biting yours, wearing artificial ones might help to break you of the habit. They are easily adjusted and the price which I quoted you is for a set of ten—not just one.

REVERE HALTS ALL BUSES ON NEW LINE

Revere police today stopped buses of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway and took the names of the drivers.

Revere contends that the buses cannot operate legally until consent of the city council and mayor is obtained.

The company has a permit from the State Department of Public Utilities for the new line which started in operation Monday from Middleton, Danvers, Salem and Lynn, over the new radial highway in Revere and through Sumner traffic tunnel into Boston.

10-CENT FARE DEMANDED

The Revere City Council has declared it will not grant any bus line permit until that city is granted a 10-cent fare into Boston with free connections with all the Boston Elevated lines.

The council at its meeting last week declared granting of the permit by the state department was a violation of home rule. It also charged no hearing was held.

Revere also claims the company starts the route in Middleton as a subterfuge so it can claim Revere is only one among several cities and towns which refuses to grant the permit for the new speed service to Boston.

MAYOR DIRECTS FIGHT

Mayor James M. O'Brien, who has returned from his trip to Jefferson, where he was recuperating from the effects of the attack made on his his home, instructed Police Chief Tighe to halt the buses to acquire data for a test in court.

Motorcycle Officer Daniel M. Sweeney stopped the buses at the new traffic circle, where the Lynn Marsh road, the International highway and the new radial route to the tunnel intersect.

Mayor O'Brien said:

"It is unfair and illegal for the Department of Public Utilities to grant a permit without a new hearing. The only hearing they held on this matter was in 1934 before my election as mayor.

Tokio Military Slayer Doomed

By International News Service

London, Aug. 14—Lieutenant-Colonel Saburo Aisawa, slayer of Lieutenant-General Tetsuzan Nagata, head of the Military Affairs office, today was tried by a court-martial, according to a Reuter's Tokio dispatch, and is "understood" to have been sentenced to death.

MAYOR FIGHTS Tunnel Toll Jump

Mayor Mansfield is on record today as firmly opposed to any increase in tolls at the East Boston tunnel. Answering a suggestion that rates be raised to cut down the present serious traffic problem, the mayor declared it would not be fair to increase charges at least until the Chelsea bridge is complete.

BLOOD-GIVER'S DEED

Officer Seizes 2 After Transfusion

Within a few minutes of having submitted to a blood transfusion to save the life of his infant daughter in Boston Lying-In Hospital, Patrolman Jeremiah Gainey captured two suspected thieves in the rear of the High School of Commerce near the hospital today.

Gainey, who lives in Weld Hill avenue, Forest Hills is attached to Roxbury Crossing station. He was seeking fresh air on the hospital grounds after the transfusion when he saw two youths acting suspiciously near the school.

He chased and captured both and they were held on suspicion of having stolen four auto tires and wheels from cars parked in the district.

Bruno Death House Pal Cheats Chair

By Associated Press

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 14—The voice of a comrade, intervening almost at the last moment, saved John Favorito, young Edgewater mechanic, from paying the death penalty last night.

Favorito was to have died in the electric chair at 8 p. m. for slaying Emil Vyborny, gasoline station owner, of Englewood Cliffs. At 4 p. m. Charles Weise, 23, of Closter, serving 12 to 15 years imprisonment for participation in the crime, said in a note to the warden that he wanted to "assume blame for the killing in the Vyborny murder case."

Governor Hoffman granted Favorito a week's reprieve to permit authorities to investigate Weise's statement.

By coincidence, Favorito is a death house comrade of Bruno Richard Hauptmann and the slain gasoline station owner was an acquaintance of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

OLD ORCHARD ASKS TRAINS

1—Whereas, that Old Orchard Beach is generally recognized as one of the foremost and finest resorts of North America, annually attracting to its marvelous beach over a million and one-half people, including over 100,000 tourists from Canada.

2—That the present railroad train schedules on the Boston & Maine Railroad are inadequate to meet the necessities of railroad travel to and from this resort and ought to be improved by more frequent daily stops of the splendid service of its fast trains at this resort.

3—That to encourage and stimulate not only the business and broader national use of the unusual health giving properties of Old Orchard Beach, more liberabl and promotional railroad fares should be immediately put into effect.

4—That Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, of Boston, a Summer resident, be instructed to interview President E. S. French, of the Boston & Maine, and present these resolutions to him and urge that their suggestions be adopted.

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, of Boston, addressed the gathering and urged passage of the resolutions.

3 NEAR DEATH AFTER CRASH

Worcester, Aug. 14—Two accidents in five minutes at Ludlow and Main streets, known as "death curve," critically injured three men today.

They are:

The three men were taken to City hospital, where their names were placed on the danger list.

Meacham then got back into his machine but could not start it. McNamee and Kerber, pedestrians, came forward and offered to assist.

At this time an oil tank truck rounded the corner, crashed into a telephone pole and crushed Meacham and the pedestrians against the car.

Solons Vote Extra Pay to Themselves

Extra compensation for members of the Legislature amounting to one-half their regular traveling allowance was voted favorably today by the House Rules Committee.

Members are regularly allowed $4.20 a mile for traveling expenses, one way from their homes to Boston, once only. In other words, a member living 100 miles from Boston gets $420 for the entire session.

Out of this he pays his railroad or other fare and pays for his hotel and living expenses.

648-Pound Tuna Landed By R. I. Man

By Associated Press

Liverpool, N. S., Aug. 14—A 648-pound tuna lay in cold storage today while its conqueror—Lee Crandell of Ashaway, R. I.—was hailed as king of the Nova Scotia fishing waters for 1935.

It was the biggest horse mackerel taken off this province this year, though far behind the record 956-pounder that Thomas Howell of Chicago pulled out of Liverpool bay last summer.

Oddly enough, Crandell was fishing with Howell when he hooked his big fellow Monday. The yachting party watched from 7:30 in the morning until almost midnight while Crandell played his catch.

Once the rod broke, the tuna was almost lost as the fisherman changed his line to a new one.

AUSTEN LAKE

Governor Curley, Commonwealth's No. 1 Sportsman

GOVERNOR JAMES M. CURLEY is a politician of many interests, of which the world heavyweight title is not the least of them.

I would have said that Governor Curley is a statesman who likes to win contests of all sorts, including elections and arguments, were it not that he recently said, in his parson's voice, that he did not wish to be smirched by the sinister implications of the word.

Austen Lake

Since January, when his term began, the governor has twice nodded his head at local sporting promoters, like Jove from Mt. Olympus.

When the horsemen were squabbling over the location of a horse track last March, the governor spread his imperial paw over East Boston and said, "Let there be a beautiful garden spot, where now lies only a wilderness dump." And it came to pass.

And lately, while C. F. Adams and Bruce Wetmore were peddling their Braves stock among several syndicates, the governor expressed the pious trust that it would be safely kept in Boston hands. So that Adams will probably add that load to his other worries.

And now the governor writes Paul Bowser a note, full of gentle affection, hoping that Paul will soon contrive, by hook or otherwise, to coax Dan O'Mahoney and Ed Don George into the ring for the second installment of their wrestling serial.

* * *

Mayor's Shotgun Charity

AS THE NO. 1 COMMON PEOPLE'S man, Curley has always fingered the sporting pulse. Among the joyous souvenirs of my sport writing career are the happy little meetings he used to hold in the city council house when he was mayor.

The Red Sox and the Braves always played a city charity game in late summer, and the mayor would summons his department captains and shoot batches of tickets down their throats, placing disposal up to them.

It was a moment for stomach chuckles when the headman of the Public Works would rise and say with a pussycat smile that he would handle all of 2000, Mr. Mayor. But the mayor would harrumph in his throat, cast a hen's eye over his spectacles and say, "Put him down for 5000 tickets with no refunds."

And the P. W. chief would slump down with a die-for-dear-old-Rutgers air and wearing a sticky grin as if his garters had just busted.

It was a shotgun performance in which the mayor stuffed tickets into his workers like a veterinary drenching a horse. But it was for the common good and netted indigent families of the city many a bundle of faggots and a pantry snack.

Danno Gets Special Privilege

IT IS PLUCKY OF THE Gov. to command another renewal of the Danno-Don wars, because George twice unloaded Danno over the topmost ring strands and almost into the gubernatorial lap.

He did not hit the Governor, but he did splash the state military staff, mowing down a file of Colonels like a row of duckpins so that they lay in loose attitudes with their medals flopped up on their chests and their sword chains tangled.

Being a mannerly lad, trained to old country courtesy, Danno paused to pick up the soldiers and dust the cigar stumps and ringside garbage off their pants.

The referee was pumphandling the count very slowly so Danno could get the staff propped up again. And just when he reached "nineteen," Danno saw a general's legs poking out from the scaffold and went back to rescue him from the rubbish and find him a comfortable chair.

This took time, of course. But the referee was charmed by the scene, and did not toll off the final knockout number until Danno had scrambled back to the platform.

When George went over the ropes he did not fall into any official laps and merely fractured a common reporter's chair, which gave him less than no immunity. So the referee pumped him out in pretty short order.

I guess the Governor feels pretty guilty about giving Danno special privilege and wishes now to have the drama re-enacted on the chance that the boys might hurl each other into neutral territory and leave no aftermath of quibbles.

Not Like Huey Long

UNLIKE SENATOR HUEY LONG of Louisiana, who is riding out the summer in Kennebunkport, Me., Governor Curley is fastidious about his sport tampering.

In Curley's place Huey would not just ask Danno and Don to wrestle a second chapter of their dime thriller.

He would hoise his satin kimono above his knobby knees and wrestle them himself, with his bodyguard in the ring equipped with side arms and brass knuckler. And he would win, or else.

The Senator just now is doing light training, such as stomach bends and knee dips, for the coming football season at Louisiana State. The Senator greatly desires to win the national football title for his state.

The college gate receipts in the hands of such a political organization as he commands in Louisiana amounts to worthwhile money. And then, also, the Senator likes to win for the sake of winning.

But Senator Long is what Governor Curley might define as a statesman, which possibly is why he prefers to remain a politician.

There is all the ominous difference between an amateur and a professional in this.

GEORGE Will Put Up Belt FOR RETURN GO

By Jack Conway

Ed Don George has agreed to put up his $10,000 diamond studded championship belt if Dan O'Mahoney will give him a return bout.

This is the belt George refuses to turn over to the young Irishman after the latter lifted his title before 50,000 fans at Braves Field.

George claimed Jimmy Braddock counted Danno out, and that as a result there was no reason why he should turn over the title belt.

Governor James M. Curley, in a letter to Paul Bowser, asked the promotor to try to re-match the big fellows.

The governor stated a great many people had informed him they were dissatisfied with the decision. They believe O'Mahoney was given the best of things by Referee Braddock.

Paul Bowser has been in communication with O'Mahoney and is trying to get the latter to accept the tussle. If Bowser can sign George and O'Mahoney, he will stage the tussle at Fenway Park in September.

O'Mahoney is in the South on a barnstorming tour, and has not given his reply to Bowser about meeting George again. In view of the fact Governor Curley believes Danno should take on Don in a return bout, the Irishman will be in a poor position if he turns down the tussle.

Bowser is at the Grand Circuit races at Goshen, N. Y. He is spending his days racing his trotters and pacers and his evenings trying to sign O'Mahoney and George.

Bowser in no uncertain language has let it be known that if the bout is signed, George will have to put up the championship belt with him. He isn't going to take any chances of having Don change his mind again.

When not swinging from the hip, Bill Werber can lay down a neat bunt. Here's how he does it. Werber is playing a most prominent part in the success of the Red Sox. His home run helped lift them to third place.

MAINE COOL Toward Mutuels

Skowhegan, Me., Aug. 14—Less than $6000 passed through the parimutuel mills at the opening day's races of the Skowhegan Fair.

One long shot, Killarney, paid a lone supporter $70.90.

O'Malleys' Reply to Adams

Today the O'Malley Associates, one of the two syndicates still bidding for the Boston Braves, will give their answer to Charles F. Adams. No conference is slated.

According to Louis O'Malley, they have been considering a proposition made by the Braves' vice-president and this afternoon will determine if the Tribe is to pass into their hands.

They intend to purchase the club outright if they secure it.

This is likewise the day set for George Preston Marshall, the Washington bidder, to end his negotiations for the club one way or the other.

Bostwick Receives New Polo Mark

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 13—The Bostwick handicap of Georgs Herbert (Peter) Bostwick and Dunbar were one notch higher today in the national polo handicap ratings.

The United States Polo Association announced their increase in handicaps last night, along with changes in the ratings of other players of national note.

George was raised from five to six goals, and Dunbar, once a Yale star, was raised from four to five.

The three top ranking players, Tommy Hitchcock, Cecil Smith and Winston Guest, remained at nine goals. James F. Curtis, Jr., of the Southern Arizona Polo Club of Tucson, who played with the victorious Aiken Knights in the national junior championship, was raised from one to four goals, the biggest increase in the list.

Caddy Playoff Next Monday

Jimmy Murphy, Pine Brook Valley, and Mike Yankowski, Worcester, who were tied with 157s at the end of the 36 holes, will play off for the Massachusetts Caddy championship next Monday morning at the Wollaston Golf Club.

Ex-President Charles H. Cross, who is recovering from a double operation, will leave the Deaconess Hospital next Saturday or Sunday . . . You can bet he'll be at Wollaston fo. the caddy play off.

It was the 18th green at Wollaston that made it possibl for Yankowski to tie for the title and Murphy to lose it . . . Mike sank a 30-foot putt for a three which gave his a 75 for the p m. round but Jimmy three putted from a holeable distance in the morning round.

Today is Eddie Simpson Day at Brae Burn and tonight the state amateur champion will be duly honored by his club members . . .

Billy Whitcomb, who will be known as Wilton for the rest of the week, has his broad "A" well broadened for his four-day session at Essex.

Chicago, Aug. 14—The Joe Louis-Max Baer bout in September "should be a great fight," said Jack Dempsey, here with his wife and daughter en route from Los Angeles to New York.

"The first punch probably will determine the winner," the former champion added.

'Tomorrow' Player Gains Goal—Werber Hits Homer

By Joe Cashman

By Joe Cashman

Chicago, Aug. 14—The season's first local appearances of Allan "Dusty" Cooke as a Red Sox outfielder has won him the most prominent niche in Chicago's crowded gallery of public and private malefactors.

The award is unanimous. It couldn't be otherwise.

Not since the St Valentine Day Massacre has the Windy City witnessed such cannonading as "Dusty" furnished the spectators while the Boston Sox opened their final invasion of the West against the native Hose.

Five times the enigmatic Tatter, shouldered his trusty bludgeon to do battle with White Sox sharpshooters. And when the smoke was all over it was discovered that he had connected for two triples a double, a walk, three runs and two tallies driven in.

As a result, it's the Kenny Flock and not the Chicago crew which occupies third place in the race today.

TRIPLIN' KID

You know by now that the slow-speaking, fast-running Mister Cooke had the most auspicious afternoon of his career.

The recital of the bare facts, however, don't come close to revealing the full importance of "Dusty's" contribution to Johnny Welch's 5-3 victory.

Had he failed to reach base instead of doubling in the second ou, heroes would have made only one of the five markers they chalked up to drove Johnny Whitehead to the showers.

His first triple came with two out and meant a run. His second triple spelled the difference between three runs and one run in the ninth.

There were other Boston heroes. Almada gathered two doubles and a single and two runs and chased home four tallies. Werber bashed out his 12th homer and showed no ill effects of the spiking the day before.

In fact, every Fenwayite contributed at least one safety to a 14-hit attack except Manager Cronin but Joe was the defensive star, handling nine difficult chances perfectly and starting two timely double plays.

But it was Cooke who made it all possible.

"Dusty" wasn't playing on the Sox previous visits here because he wasn't hitting the size of his hat and it didn't appear as though he ever would.

He earned a starting assignment only because both Carl Reynolds and "Bing" Miller were hit by injuries at the same time.

There wasn't one in a hundred among Boston fans who believed "Dusty" would stick longer than necessary and fewer yet who imagined he would be any help while on the job.

EXCELSIOR

He wasn't rated as being entitled to even a fair opportunity. He had to do everything just right all the time to escape being roundly jeered.

He was very much "on the spot." But he battled his way off. He did well enough to be kept in the garden after Reynolds and Miller recovered. Now he shapes up as a star.

From the day he broke in with the Yanks some four years back, "Dusty" has been known as a "Tomorrow" player. That means one who has all the signs of becoming an outstanding performer but never actually becomes one.

Maybe he has caught up with "tomorrow." He's certainly closer than ever before.

And, because of this, the Red Sox are thinking of second place as they take the field behind "Fritz" Ostermueller to face "Babe" Phelps in the second game here this p. m.

Here's Dusty

$1249 Average For Yearlings

By Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y. Aug. 13—A mixed lot of yearlings sold for $55,745, averaging $1,249 per head, in the Saratoga sales ring last night.

Mrs. Dodge Sloan's Brookmeade Stable and Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt were prominent among the bidders. Mrs. Sloane bidding $7,500, top price of the evening, over young Vanderbilt to acquire a bay son of Ariel—Elizabeth Bruce.

The Vanderbilt sister whose daddy won $31,230 and sired among others the stakes winner Macriel and the winner Ariel Cross, was easily the best looking piece of horseflesh at the sale.

Vanderbilt purchased a bay colt by Display, sire of Discovery, for $5,200, the second highest price of the evening. A. J. (Jack) Goldsborough bought the chestnut son of Jack High-Alice Foster, half brother to Mr. Khayyam for $3,100.

PROUD GIRL DARLING AT 'GANSETT

Best Bet in Smart Field of Platers

By Dave Wilson
Best Bet—Proud Girl

In this event, Proud Girl, a daughter of Man O' War, looms forth as the safest hazard on the card.

She has been [illegible] asked of her in recent training and demonstrated that she is primed to the O'Hara racing style by turning in several noteworthy performances at this park in the Fall meeting. Howell will do the kicking.

Molly Greenock, in the fourth place, is a secondary attraction at six furlongs receives a high figure on recent performances and has worked in a manner that leaves no doubt of her fitness.

FIRST—OBRIEN, CORUM, A. OCONNELL

OBRIEN, a speedy member of Sherrin's stable, is superior of the [illegible] and should go to the front from the start at this course to [illegible] CORUM [illegible] and should [illegible] to come to fear with A. OCONNELL [illegible] and best. The latter ran gamely and well at Saratoga.

SECOND—SANDY BEACH, PLAYFUL TOUR, SAN RAFAEL

SANDY BEACH holds an edge in class over the large field in the second at five and one-half furlongs. Raced with better ones at Chicago and as he faces weaker company here there should be no excuse. PLAYFUL TOUR, fourth on the eligible list will be dangerous if she breaks in. SAN RAFAEL would have won her last but for meeting with interference.

THIRD—GOLDEN TIME, IDLE VICTORY, DOVE OF PEACE

GOLDEN TIME was heavily supported in his final at Empire against better opposition than he encounters in the third. He turned in a creditable effort that day. IDLE VICTORY is a steady-going plater which shapes up second best. DOVE OF PEACE, winner at Suffolk Downs, is as good as that performance shows.

FOURTH—MOLLY GREENOCK, IMA COUNT, POSTSCRIPT

MOLLY GREENOCK, extremely partial to this track looms forth as the winner of the sprinters here. She figures to have no trouble scoring. IMA COUNT a winner over the track last meeting, is the one to fear. POSTSCRIPT has a bit of class, and recent training indicates he is good and fresh.

FIFTH—PROUD GIRL, FAIRSICKLE, JUBILARGO

PROUD GIRL is very well placed in the mile and 70 yards of this affair. Three quarters in 1.12.2, in company with Good Sweeper, was a cooking test for her. FAIRSICKLE went in 1:12 yesterday for this. He is in the [illegible] JUBILARGO, as improved performer, will be hard to keep out of the picture.

SIXTH—FREE TRADE, BROWN HILDA, ALL HAIL

FREE TRADE, second to Tuckling at the other track, will have five pounds less to pack in this mile and sixteenth test. He promises to take down the heavy money here. BROWN HILDA, a sure-going mare, has been right up there in recent endeavors and rates the place call over AL HAIL.

SEVENTH—UNCLE TOM, THE POTTER, THREE DAGGERS

UNKIE TOM is dropped in a spot with $1250 top and bottom platers in this number where it will be hard for him to fail if he runs back to good Suffolk form. THE POTTER going briskly in training shapes up the main contender with THREE DAGGERS liked for the smallest portion of the purse.

EIGHTH—BULL MARKET, THISWAY, MATHIAS

BULL MARKET won his final at Suffolk in a manner that says he is at his peak. Can't go beyond him. THISWAY, second in his last should take the place. MATHIAS is a steady going plater which favors this [illegible]

Frankhouse, Johnson on Hill Top

The Braves, more deeply in the cellar than ever before, started its home stay with a double-header against the Reds at Braves Field this afternoon. Fred Frankhouse and Si Johnson were the opposing pitchers.

FIRST INNING

SECOND INNING

REDS—Goodman fouled to Jordan. Campbell singled. Riggs filed to Berger. Bottomley was out stealing, Mueller to Urbanski. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING

FOURTH INNING

REDS—Slade singled. Herman tripled, scoring Slade. Goodman popped to Whitney. Urbanski threw out Bottomley. Riggs walked. Riggs stole second. Campbell walked. Riggs to the bases. Kampouris filed to Thompson. ONE RUN.

FIFTH INNING

BRAVES—Thompson singled. Berger walked. Lee filed to Goodman. Whitney batted. Urbanski threw out Bottomley. Riggs walked. Riggs stole second. Campbell walked. Whitney to bases, scoring Thompson. Cosecarti singled scoring Berger, and Whitney went to third when Goodman fumbled. Mueller singled scoring Whitney. L. Herrman received Johnson. Frankhouse walked Urbanski singled, scoring Cosecarti. Jordan filed to F. Herman, but when Herman dropped the ball Mueller scored and Frankhouse was forced at third, F. Herman to Riggs. Thompson popped to Kampouris. FIVE RUNS.

THE SINGIN' KID AT NARRAGANSETT

By Walter Kiley

Narragansett Park, R. I., August 14—The "Singing Kid" has landed at Narragansett, and all is well along the racing front.

The "Singing Kid"—he was born Arthur Loftus, but none know him by his real cognomen—has turned down flattering stage offers in order to make the meeting successful. Generalissimo Walter O'Hara should deem himself extremely fortunate.

You and I might crack out a burst of cheers as the field thunders down the home stretch. Not so Loftus, who breaks out his rich, clear tenor, keeping time to the flashing hoofs of the thoroughbred racers with his lilting melody.

There isn't a race track in the country, or a night club either, which doesn't know him well. Or a horseman who rates the call who hasn't basked in his liquid notes.

Night after night owners and trainers following the racing circuit relax in hotel comfort while the "Singing Kid"—he is now about 45 years old with a receding forehead belying his youth—entertains with tuneful harmony.

Refused Part in Runyon's Play

In fact Damon was recently designing the cast for his play, "Saratoga Chips," and wired the songster of a prominent role.

But Art had his fling at the stage, singing his way up the ladder to success, and found the call of the turf too great to go unheard and so passed up the bright glare of the kleig lights of the stage.

"Imagine me turning down Damon Runyon," the Kid asks? "But I have had my fill of that sort of thing. I belong to the race tracks and there I stay."

It's been a happy life for the "Singing Kid" ever since those early days when he was official bat boy for the late John McGraw.

He has sung his way through life, a happy-go-lucky, cheerful optimist, seeing only the finest in life and finding his greatest happiness when he can chase away the cares and the gloom of his friends with cheerful melody.

Used to Manage Shandon Farm

For that reason he is welcome everywhere. His pals are usually owners and trainers. They hit the bright spots often, and it is always the "Singing Kid" who is called on to render the musical entertainment. Arthur is of the horsemen and therefore is kin to them. He was formerly manager of the famous Shandon Farm Breeding Establishment, and his record with the racers compares favorably with his songs and laughter.

SYRACUSE TEAM In Finals

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 14—The Syracuse Markson Juniors today were in possession of the State American Legion baseball championship by virtue of a one-sided win over the White Plains club, 17 to 2, yesterday.

FRISCH To Use Dean AND HALLAHAN

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 14—Hoping to move into first place in the National League pennant race by the end of the week, Manager Frankie Frisch of the St. Louis Cardinals called on Dizzy Dean and Bill Hallahan to face the pace-setting New York Giants in their double header at the Polo Grounds today.

Five games in all will be played with single contests tomorrow, Friday and Saturday. The Cards, now trailing the Giants by three games, can move into the lead by taking four out of five. The Saturday night standing, in that case, would be St. Louis 67 and 41 for .620 New York 63 and 42 for .618.

Stage For Alabama And Mamaux

Chicago, Aug. 14 (US)—Edwin C. "Alabama" Pitts, former sing Sing prison athlete, now playing with Albany in the International Baseball League, and the team's manager, Al Mamaux, have signed a contract for a vaudeville tour, Phillip Terell, local booking agent, announced.

The contract calling for the tour will first have to secure the approval of Warden Lewis Laws of Sing Sing and of the New York State Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Mamaux is a singer, but it was not stated what Pitts would do.

LONGDEN To Ride for BRADY

By the Associated Press

Jockey Longden and A. A. Baroni have parted in friendly fashion. Longden will ride for Matt Brady, who is handling the horses of T. J. Ziegler, Jr.

Observers were of the opinion that it was no fault of Starter George Cassidy that E. R. Bradley's Bit of Sorrow was left at the post in the two-horse race at Saratoga on Monday, which was won by Kate. Bit of Sorrow is noted for stubbornness, and stable hands have experienced trouble in getting the horse out in the morning workouts. But of Sorrow took one leap and then refused to budge. He again was put in the stall but all attempts to get him away were unavailing. Starter Cassidy has barred the horse from further racing at Saratoga.

Most of the 300 horses still at Suffolk Downs in Boston will be shipped to Texas, as their owners have been unable to get stalls at other tracks.

Managing Director Allan Wilson will keep a crew working on Suffolk Downs track for the remainder of the summer to insure good condition of the track when the fall meeting opens.

ALL GREYHOUND IN HAMBLETONIAN

SO SAYS BILL CORUM

By Bill Corum

Good Time Track, Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 14—Greyhound, that's all!

Almost without exception they refuse to see past E. J. Baker's unbeaten gray colt in seeking the winner.

If the anticipated crowd of 30,000 that is expected for the running of the world's richest light harness horse stake feels the same way about it, Greyhound probably will score a 1 to 2 favorite in the betting.

If he wins he will be the first grey horse ever to win the Hambletonian and the first gelding, oddly enough, because none ever has started before.

PALIN IN SULKY

Beaten in only one heat this season—a heat in which he virtually was left—and winner of four straight as a three-year-old, the big colt from the Middle West looks "a look," if all goes well, at the start.

He is inclined to be on edge before he gets the "go," and in the big field of nine probable starters this could prove a serious handicap.

However he has beaten them before, is razor sharp, and doesn't, personally, know that the race is different from any other.

No owner or trainer ever has repeated since the race was inaugurated over the Syracuse State Fair Track in 1926.

G. W. Phelps' filly, Tilly Tonks, accounted one of greyhound's most serious rivals got a bad break by drawing the number 9 post position and probably will have to score behind her field, because of the narrowness of the track.

THE ENTRIES

Lawrence Hanover, which won the heat that greyhound lost at Thorncliffe, is also accorded some sort of chance to win at least one heat, as is the second grey in the field, Silver King.

Horse	Driver	Odds
Harper Hanover,	Henry Thomas	4-1
Pedro Tipton,	Will Hodgson	8-1
Calumet Finery,	C. Valentine	15-1
L. Hanover,	H. M. Parshall	4-1
Velo Arion,	Leo Fleisch	10-1
Silver King,	Ben White	3-1
Warwell Worthy,	Will Caton	30-1
Greyhound,	Sep Palin	1-2
Tilly Tonks,	Fred Egan	6-1

PARKER Defeats MAKO

MENZEL WHIPS SAM LEE

Newport, R. I., Aug. 14 (AP)—Frankie Parker of Spring Lake, N. J., runner-up in last year's Newport tennis tournament, today became the first Casino semi-finalist by overwhelming Gene Mako of Los Angeles, U. S. Davis Cup rookie, 6-1, 6—1, 6—1.

Parker, as steady as a rock, discovered his opponent in an erratic mood when they faced off and his methodical attack, much of which was launched from the net, ruined Mako's control.

Roderick Menzel, broad shouldered Czecho Slovakian, star, moved into a quarter finals match against Bryan "Bitsy" Grant of Atlanta, by defeating Sam Lee of Seattle, 6-3, 6-4, in a fourth rounder.

Menzel became the last foreign threat in the tourney when Don Budge, promising Davis Cup youngster, revealed the backhand weakness in the otherwise strong game of Enrique Maier of Spain.

FOURTH ROUND SINGLES

Don Budge, Oakland, Cal., defeated Enrique Maier Spain, 6—1, 6—0.
Roderick Menzel, Czechoslovakia, defeated Sam Lee, Seattle, Wash., 6—3, 6—4.

QUARTER FINALS SINGLES

FIRST ROUND DOUBLES

Louis Hobbs, Newport, and Armand Kraseua, Brooklyn, defeated Dwight F. Davis, Jr., New York, and J. P. Lee, Newport, 6—3, 6—3, 6—3.
Robert Little, Tuscumbia, Ala., and Sarto Bontemps, Miami, Fla., defeated Ranger Potts, Jr., Memphis, and Frank A. Thompson, St. Louis, 6—3, 6—4, 8—1.

SECOND ROUND DOUBLES

Robert M. Bryan, Chattanooga, Tenn., and John McDermid, Fort Worth, Tex., defeated Gar Doig, Chicago, and William Reese, Atlanta, 6—4, 6—3, and
J. W. Fabiszewski, New York and Martin Busby, Miami, Fla., defeated Frank Bostick, New York, and Thomas Flynn, Roanoke, Va., 6—3, 6—3.
J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., and Bryan Grant, Atlanta, defeated Leonard Patterson, Los Angeles, and Gerard Phipps, Denver, Col., 8—6, 6—4.
S. E. Davenport, 3rd, Forest Hills, N. Y., and Robert Kelleher, New York, defeated E. Ramey Donovan, Orange, N. J., and James E. Thorburn, Avon, Ct., 6—3, 6—4, 6—1.

BRAVES RECALL FLETCHER

Mr. Boston Levias Amateur Rickard

By JACK CONWAY

BEN LEVIAS dropped into this office to talk track sports, swimming, golf, canoe racing and outboard motor racing as he prepared to start for Rangeley, Maine, where he will stage New England's greatest athletic carnival on Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Mr. Boston

Ben has been promoting various kinds of sports events down through the years. His hobby has been swimming races, but when he has nothing else to do he will conduct track events.

Outboard motor promotions have been one of his recent additions. I think he added golf to his Rangeley program just so he would have a new feature.

I do not think Ben has ever had an opportunity to play golf. He has been too busy with his promotions.

Each winter Ben pays me a visit and tells me he is going to stage a skating carnival for the Christmas Basket Fund.

This promotion has become one of the outstanding events of the Winter season, and has added many thousands of dollars to the Christmas Fund.

I have known Ben to give his support and youthful vigor to such quiet pastimes as beano parties and croquet matches, but he is only guilty of these infractions in between major promotions of the type he has at Rangeley.

KELLEY IN RACE

JOHNNY KELLEY of Arlington, winner of the B. A. A. Marathon, will be numbered among those who compete in the 12-mile road race at Rangeley tomorrow.

Kelley won't have a picnic winning as he will be opposed by Andrew "Hawk" Zamparelli of Medford, winner of the New England 10-mile championship at Dedham; Roger LaBonte of the Norfolk Y. M. C. A., victor of the Readville and Gloucester races; Earl Collins of the North Medford club, who has starred in B. A. A. Marathons; William Malloy of Somerville, another plodder in the Unicorn grind; William Simons of Needham; Paul Miller of the Norfolk Y. M. C. A. and the veteran Jimmy Henigan of Medford.

* * *

Competition in the women's track events are certain to be keen. In addition to the Massachusetts A. A. U. title, tied the Futurity record of 28 4-5 seconds, and set a mark of 31 4-5 for the five-sixteenths.

DERBY Final at REVERE

RECORD CROWD ANTICIPATED

By Sam Cohen

Eight sleek greyhounds, the blood of champions coursing through their veins, go to the post in the tenth race at Wonderland tonight, for a test of about seven-sixteenths of a mile.

When this gruelling race is ended a champion will be crowned, racing history will be made in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and the summer meeting of Wonderland Park will be ended.

The Massachusetts Derby, a $1000 added affair will be worth $640 to the winner. Greyhound owners have agreed to split the big stake money into four portions.

The winner gets half, the second hound one fourth, the third 15 per cent, and the fourth 10 per cent.

Tonight Jack Clark and Jimmy Galloway, co-managers, have prepared to handle the greatest crowd of the season.

Police Court, with 10 victories in 13 starts at Wonderland, has established himself as perhaps the greatest racer in America. Only once in the last 10 starts has Police Court bowed to a rival, and that was a quarter-mile heat in which he was carried wide and found Brown Sugar, Camden Lager and Dance Tune too fleet to catch in so short a distance.

And yet, Police Court may not go to the post a favorite in this long grind—nearly seven-sixteenths of a mile.

Many will back Mutton Roll, the famous distance ramler that Doc Austin's string. Mutton Roll is royally bred as Police Court and her mother, Mustard Roll, was famous for her ability to "run all night," as the dog men say.

Police Court proved his ability to go a route last spring when he won the West Flagler Derby in Miami. But on the same night Mutton Roll defeated a band of routers at Hollywood, Fla., a few miles away.

Dan Oswald's Court House, a brother of Police Court, will be dangerous. Court House, in his last two starts, tied the Futurity record of 28 4-5 seconds, and set a mark of 31 4-5 for the five-sixteenths.

Fleet Dog, Lucky Promoters

Here is Mutton Roll, Doc Austin's prize entry in the Wonderland Derby tonight. He beat a number of Derby candidates in his last trial on Monday night.

LEACH Signed as SCOUT

STARTS DUTIES TODAY

Bill McKechnie, general manager of the Braves, announced this morning that he had engaged Tommy Leach to act as scout.

Leach, whose home is in Philadelphia, started his duties today by going to Scranton to look over players in the New York-Penn. League.

Leach, who was about the size of Maranville in his playing days, formerly was a star member of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and was a team-mate of McKechnie. He was a great third-baseman and later became an outfielder.

McKechnie has also recalled Elbie Fletcher, former Milton High star and the product of the Boston American local baseball star contest, from the Wilkes Barre Club. Fletcher is one of the bright lights of the New York-Penn League. He is hitting 365, and his fielding has been sensational. It is McKechnie's intention to place Fletcher on first base during the remainder of the season.

Lynches Tangle With French

The Lynch Club, which dropped a 10-inning game to the C. M. A. C. team at Lowell a few weeks ago in the Boston Twilight League race, will attempt to get revenge on the Frenchmen this evening when they catch them at Cambridge Field.

A big crowd is expected to watch the Lowell team, champions of the first half race, which will go into a playoff series with the first and second teams of both halves.

A victory for the Lynch Club will boost them into the first division if the Cambridge Cubs are not successful in their battle against the Middlesex Laundry team at South Acton this evening.

The Laundry team expected to clean up at Arlington last evening, but were lucky enough to get away with a 1 to 1 tie when Poe made a sensational running catch which robbed Tony Sarausky, Fordham Flash, of an extra base clout with a man on.

The Miller Oil team, which tied the Ivory Club 31 to 31 last week, settled it last evening with a 5 to 2 win. Manager Jimmy Hanney starting the scoring with a homer in the first.

DECIDING Park League Go TONIGHT

The seventh and deciding game of the Boston Park League semi-finals between Jordans and the Casey club will be played tonight at the Dorchester Town Field, and the 7000 crowd of Monday night should be beaten

The rush of the Retailers to defend their laurels won last year in the finals from this same Casey club, is the talk of Dorchester

Having been two down as a result of dropping the initial two games of the series, and their best man, Charley Bird, defeated, the cause of the interlopers looked quite dark.

However, Frank Callahan came through with a 7-6 win in the third game, while the Jordans found their batting eyes to rake McCarthy and Davis for 11 hits.

Bird hurled the next two games for Jordans, and came out with 1-1 ties in both, driving in the tying counter Monday himself at the Town Field

Last night at Neponset, Callahan turned in a fine performance, holding the Caseys in check with three hits, one of them scratchy while his mates pounded O Hara from the mound and went on to hit Bud Davis, winning 7-0.

So, the teams are set to go again "Iron Man" Bird will toe the mound for the fourth time, seeking his first win.

On the other side of the field, Dick Casey has decided to use "Iron Man" Bird will toe the mound hasn't appeared in the series to date, but who is a capable performer.

He pitched a nice game for the Caseys last Saturday.

Governor to Distribute Dog Prizes at Taunton

The first feature will be the eighth, the Massachusetts Night headliner offering the "Old Bay State" silver trophy.

The second feature will be the ninth, "The Adieu Stake."

That is the lineup for getaway night at the spacious racing center to complete the Massachusetts night program which will find Governor James M. Curley presenting the winners owners with trophy awards as guest of honor.

The "Old Bay State" trophy race finds the renewal of the My Daddy-Ridge Band feud with a slight advantage being granted by the handicappers to that son of My Laddie, owned by that famous kennel of John Miles.

Bracketed with these two top hounds are Upstart, Gangster Cap, Ima Princess, and Scotch Lassie any one capable of winning with the breaks

The "Adieu Stakes," in be run at three-eighths of a mile, brings out the outstanding routers of the Taunton meeting

MUTTON ROLL DERBY FAVORITE

CLOSES FAST IN STRETCH

By Sam Cohen

Mutton Roll, mighty brindle router from Doc Austin's kennel of stake winners, is selected to capture the Massachusetts Derby at Wonderland tonight.

The daughter of Red Hot—Mustard Roll—can finish with more power than Police Court and Court House, the Oswald stars, if she can keep close to the pace and not be forced wide in the stretch. Court House, due to the fast time he turned in while coming in record time just now is named second, with Police Court the champion, in the third position

Natator Plans 90-Mile Swim Home

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 14 (INS)—Byron Summers, the "flying fish" of Vallejo, Cal., was ready to plunge into the Sacramento river here today and swim down stream—90 miles—to his home town.

It will be a non-stop swim. He expect to get there by Saturday, possibly earlier," said the long distance swimmer who several years ago won a 16-mile endurance race around Alameda Island.

His other long distance feats include a 40-mile swim around Manhattan. He also holds the record for the Catalina-to-mainland swim in southern California.

TIGERS Star Out WITH INJURY

By Associated Press

Detroit Aug. 14—Charley Gehringer, the Detroit Tigers' second baseman probably will be out of the lineup again today as a result of the knee injury he suffered Sunday in the final game of the series with the White Sox.

"I won't ask Charley to play until he is ready," Manager Mickey Cochrane said this morning. "There is no sense in taking a chance on aggravating the injury."

Cochrane considered it likely that Gehringer would remain on the sidelines until Thursday

Gehringer's absence from the lineup yesterday marked the first time he has missed a game since he suffered minor injuries in an auto accident two years ago

PERRY PICKS KAY STAMMERS OVER HELENS

HELEN I 'Lucky' in BRITAIN

'HELEN JACOBS BETTER'

By Lewis Burton
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

New York, Aug. 14—That stumbling block for America's Davis Cup crusaders, aptly Fred Perry of England, arrived aboard the S. S. Berengaria to defend his national championship at Forest Hills, L. I., starting August 29, and made the occasion memorable with a few startling opinions.

As his big bombshell, echoing as far away as California, the world's No. 1 amateur player expressed the belief that Helen Jacobs will defeat Mrs. Helen Wills Moody in their next meeting, and that Kay Stammers of England can defeat them both.

Perry categorically denied he will turn professional or enter the movies.

He declined to confirm recent reports of his engagement to Helen Vinson, screen actress, referring all inquiries to the young lady, adding:

"She will return soon and will tell you everything you want to know."

BUDGE "GOOD"

On [illegible] matters, Perry felt [illegible] more at home as he discussed the Jacobs-Moody final at Wimbledon, he said:

"Miss Jacobs was unlucky. It was the first time I had seen them play each other, and I don't think Mrs. Moody can duplicate.

"But watch Kay Stammers. She beat Mrs. Moody once over there and she's capable of doing it again."

Reminded that some American critics consider Budge a potential Ellsworth Vines the British champion said.

"He's good—very good but not as fast as Ellsworth. He doesn't hit the ball as hard. I've beaten him and I've never beaten Vines.

"I don't think he will ever be as good as Ellsworth. You wouldn't call Budge's forehand one to copy."

"Bill Tilden offered to make a bet with me that Von Cramm would win Wimbledon in two years—but I didn't take the bet.

"Cramm's [illegible] to retain the challenge round again next year depend very much on Von Cramm's improvement, he added, observing:

"But I was extremely surprised at our winning 3-0 against the United States in the Davis Cup match. A couple of the matches were very close and could easily have gone the other way.

"Allison was ahead of Austin in the first match, the critical match, 5-4 and 15—30 in the final set, and he missed a comparatively easy volley."

WILL TOUR

In answer an inquiry whether he would listen to overtures from Bill O'Brien, professional tennis promoter, Perry pointedly replied.

"I am not going to listen to Bill O'Brien."

He will leave today for Canada, [illegible] will [illegible] to [illegible] begin [illegible] tournament.

Perry will sail for Australia on October 17 out of Los Angeles.

He will arrive November 4 to work for an old English sporting goods company there "and play a little," departing February 4 to join an English team in Africa.

No other Englishman will play in the American championships, he said.

PERRY Out of Longwood TENNIS PLAY

Word has been received by Henry R Guild, chairman of the Longwood tournament commitee, that Fred Perry, English tennis ace, would not compete in the national doubles tournament which will start Saturday.

However, most of America's greatest lawn tennis combinations have signified their intention of competing for the national award.

Prominent among the latest entries were the entries from Bryan Grant and J. [illegible] Hall, both veteran of long standing, and the Wilmer Hines-Henry Culley duo, which won the Longwood Bowl invitation doubles earlier in the season.

An outstanding team was entered in the women's division when Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan and Helen Jacobs announced their decision to play together. In the absence of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, the Jacobs-Fabyan team will be favored to retain national doubles title which they won last year.

The official draw will be made late today at the downtown offices of Henry R. Guild. It appears that more than 32 teams will open play Saturday.

State Junior Finalists In Hearst Tourney

ANDERSON OUTSTANDING JUNIOR FOR YEARS

By Bill Grimes

Among the very first to enter the third William Randolph Hearst New England Junior golf championship were Gerald R. Anderson, Green Hill, holder of the Massachusetts Junior title, and Richard L. Austin, United Shoe, who was the runner up to the Worcester boy at the Cohasset Golf Club.

During the state junior championship at Cohasset, Anderson and Austin battled through a 19-hole match before the former had declared the winner. They are both great golfers, who have a future in the game.

Anderson has been outstanding among the younger golfers who made [illegible] three years. At the Lincoln Country Club, in 1933, he won the state caddy title from a fast field, and a year ago at Oakley he was [illegible] the defense of [illegible] championship.

QUALIFIED

A veteran [illegible] of nine [illegible] Anderson and the late "Jock" Mc-Andrew are the ones that accomplished that feat.

Gerry qualified in the [illegible] tour championship at Blue Burn and the New England at Worcester. He beat Win Cobb, Jr., in the first round at Brae Burn, but was stopped by Dan Shea, Jr., who shot a 71 in the second round and then slipped through to the semifinals. In the New England, Anderson was a hard-fought match to Hal Madby, who went through to win the title.

Until he started to register at Cohasset, few of even the closer followers of the game, outside the confines of Essex County, appreciated the ability of Austin as a golfer. While playing for Lynn English, however, Dick established a reputation for being one of the best match players on the North Shore.

He has an unusually courageous kid yet there is nothing cocky about him. And he has one of the finest temperaments for golf that it has ever been my good fortune to see, for he refuses to allow anything to disturb him.

PLUCKY

After three putting the 15th green to lose the hole which made him two down to Anderson during the finals of the juniors, he squared the match by winning the 16th and 18th.

The Hearst entries are swamping the office and it will be advisable for all youngsters who are desirous of playing the New England junior championship to enroll as soon as possible.

JUNIOR Sailing Titles AT STAKE

By Ed Schriftgiesser

Two junior sailing championships were to be decided today in local waters, wind and weather permitting.

For keenness of competition, the South Shore series at Duxbury stood far ahead of the North Shore series at Gloucester.

On the South Shore, two long-time rivals, Squantum and South Boston, had won their way into the finals and were fighting it out today in a special match race.

Eric Shepard, on the other hand, remained a strong favorite to capture the North Shore title and the Curtis Cup after a string of victories in the opening battles gave him a commanding lead in the point standing.

Duxbury's dependence on the tides appeared most unfortunate after the preliminary series was concluded, for there was a fine southwest wind blowing across the bay and it seemed too bad that Bill McPherson and George Scott could not fight it out at once.

They were on hand this morning, however, at the top of the flood, hoping for another breeze as good. Crewing for McPherson's Southie boat were Francis Sottlick and Bill Aicardi while Scott's Squantum mates were Arthur Hartford and Peter Jacobson.

Assurance that the Finlay Cup would leave Duxbury where it has reposed for two years, came when Squantum footed faster to windward in a sailoff to settle a tie in the first division.

Since, apparently, these races can never be completed without a protest of some sort, Squantum protested Pilgrim and was upheld.

At Gloucester at least one of the races sailed to date have been won and lost because Eric Shepard was keen enough to notice that shoals of [illegible] were over the course in a weaker manner.

Young Shepard, who sails an M-R boat at Marblehead, apparently has learned that strong tides run off Eastern Point out of Gloucester harbor and salem Bay. They can be made use of if you know where to look for them, which comparatively few skippers do.

Derby Victor Will Ride for O'Hara

Saunders Shows Class Astride Forewarned

By Walter Kilcy

Narragansett Park, R. I., Aug. 11—William "Smoky" Saunders, who has a claim to real racing fame by the quality of his winning rides on Derbys in the Kentucky Derby and other classics, is now under contract to Mrs. Walter O'Hara's Arabo Stable and in such capacity may well be expected to be a real factor in the contention for top jockey honors of the present meeting.

But after watching him wrest victory in the third race of opening day on the Arabo Stable Forewarned, a six-year-old son of Spur-Mind the Paint, which is recognized as a notorious stopper, and seeing Saunders keeping him to his task throughtout, O'Hara immediately annexed his contract.

* * *

Twenty-five-year-old Hamblin Bauer, California girl and Radcliffe graduate, owner and trainer of Platinum Blond, her own mare, became the second licensed woman trainer in Rhode Island with the granting of a license by the racing commission. Mary Hirsch is the other.

Miniature warfare broke out in front of the judges' stand when Waswannapi was declared winner over the favorite, Social Climber, in Tuesday's finale.

Baba Rubinstein, Rockingham's ace announcer, is planning to head home to Cincinnati to prepare for Rockingham's second meeting. His side-kick, Tony Orsini, has been shipped to New Hampshire's mountain regions to freshen up for the latter fall races.

Ebone Lady's fine victory in Monday's sixth race has been thrown out of the record books . . . the flying lady was entered in under 113 pounds. She raced with 108. Fidelis thereby gets credit for the victory . . . Frank Kelly, able track superintendent at Suffolk Downs, has severed his connection with the East Boston track . . . . A slash in salary is said to be the reason.

* * *

Elmer Trueman, trainer of Raj Parr's Star Porter and other topnotchers, is back in the Gansett fold after an operation on his ear at the Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore . . . He will saddle Star Porter today for the featured Aquidneck Claiming Stakes, six furlongs event for three-year-olds and upwards.

Star Porter will carry top impost of 118 pounds . . . This will mark the fleet chestnut son of The Porter's first call to the post since whipping F. A. Carreaud's Ajaccio at Suffolk Downs.

Your entry must reach the "Daily Double" Handicap Game Editor of the Boston American, P. O. Box 1946, or deliver to 8 Winthrop Square, Boston, not later than 1 P. M., Thursday, August 15.

Here are the Rules:

To play the "Daily Double" Game name the horses you think will win the first and third races at Narragansett. Then place the names of the horses you believe will run second and third in each of the two races.

Entries that pick the "Daily Double" will be given first consideration. Should there be fewer "Daily Double" winners than there are prizes, winners of the remaining tickets will be scored as follows: First counts 3 points, second counts 4 points, and third counts 2 points in each race of the two races. The entries scoring the largest number of points will be declared the winners.

In the event there are more "Daily Double" winners than there are prizes, the prizes will be given to the "Daily Double" winners who score the largest number of points in selecting the horses that run second and third in the first and third races. In scoring these winners the following rules will be observed: Place counts 4 points and show 2 points for each race. Tied contestants will each receive a ticket.

In the event any of the horses you pick are scratched, the next horse will be automatically moved up one space on your list. For example, should your first choice fail to start, the second horse named becomes your first choice and the third horse your second choice.

Except where horses are scratched, your selections must run in the order in which you list them on your entry blank in order to be counted. ONLY THE NAME OF ONE HORSE MAY BE SELECTED WHERE THE HORSES ARE COUPLED IN BETTING, AS IN ENTRIES AND FIELDS. The decision of the judges will be final and no entries returned.

A coupon for Friday's "Daily Double" selections will be printed Thursday.

Each day's winners will be printed in all editions of the Boston Evening American the day after the races are run (Saturday's winners will appear in Monday's editions).

TEACHER DEATH TIP AWARDED $25 PRIZE

By The News Tip Editor

Hundreds of residents of Danvers were shocked last week when word came from New York that the body of Miss Elizabeth Ahern, 50, for years a teacher, had been buried at sea.

They—her former pupils—were planning to attend funeral services for her, news having reached Danvers that Miss Ahern died of heart failure on the Ile de France, French liner.

A Danvers woman, one of her former pupils, who—in that her name be withheld, mourned the loss of her one-time teacher and at the same time notified the Boston American News Tip Editor of the happening, according this newspaper a long "beat" over other papers.

The story, because of its extensive interest and its widespread human appeal was adjudged the best news tip of the week. And, consequently, a check for $25 is in the mails today for this Danvers woman.

Instead of a $10 second prize and a $5 third prize, there will be three prizes of $5 this week. They go to Mrs. J. J. Dillon, of 39 Estey street, Malden for her tip on an attempt hold-up in Malden during which shots were fired; to a South Boston man, (name withheld) who supplied the News Tip Editor with tips on three newsy stories, including a rescue in Hingham Harbor, a drowning at Nantasket, and a boat capsized at Hull; and to a Brighton man (name withheld) for tip that the American House, one of Boston's oldest landmarks, was to close its doors.

Radio Answers

■ We have heard the Cavaliers, and would like to know the names of the singers who make up this quartet. What program are they on now? J. L. S., Southboro.

A—John Keating sings first tenor, Morton Bowe, second tenor, John Seagle, baritone, Stanley McClelland, bass, and the pianist and arranger is Lee Montgomery. You will hear them again in September, replacing the Revelers quartet on the program with Jessica Dragonette.

Q—Who writes the Rose and Drums series heard Sunday nights? Mrs. Howe, Lexington

Q—Who plays the part of "Lum" in the Lum and Abner sketches? M. K., Boston

Q—To settle an argument, will you tell us whether Joan Blaine who plays the part of Mary Marlin in the Mary Marlin stories is a Boston girl? I claim she is.

John M., Malden

A—No, she was born in Iowa, although she made her radio debut at Medford Hillside. Perhaps that gave you the idea she was a Bostonian.

Q—What has become of Frank Parker? He doesn't seem to be on any program now, and we miss his voice very much.

Frank Parker Fans, Dorchester

Catherine Curtis on Air Tonight

New York, Aug. 14 (U.S.)—Catherine Curtis, national director of Women Investors, Inc., will go on the air tonight at 10:45 p.m. E.D.T. in a nationwide broadcast over the Columbia Network, discussing how the Roosevelt administration's tax legislation program will affect family security in the United States.

Miss Curtis has been keeping a close watch on pending tax legislation in Washington from the family viewpoint and her recent article pointing out the menaces in the administration's tax program have aroused widespread interest.

Novel entertainment!

The RKO Keith's Memorial Theater provides the stars for today's "About Faces" cartoon which is a daily feature of the Boston Evening American. The current screen fare presents "Jaina," with the all-star cast including Nigel Bruce, Jessie Ralph, David Manners, Kay Johnson, and Ian Hunter. The rest of the program consists of the latest news reel, a screen short with the rumble-footed Hal Leroy, and Haydn at the organ.

The Boston Evening American is awarding every week, $15 in cash and 30 guest tickets to the winning entries in the series. The rules to follow are very simple. Fill in the squares near the cartoon likeness of each player and answer the question which is based on the career of one of the stars. Then save your solutions until the end of the week and mail your answers—all six of them—to the "About Faces" Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.

Be sure to use the clue-letter and the complete dramatic page of the Boston Evening American as guides. The names of the winners will be announced this and every Saturday, and your prize will be mailed to you immediately.

Let your knowledge of the stars mean something substantial to you in the form of cash and equally useful guest tickets. The "About Faces" series gives you exactly this opportunity.

Tomorrow we offer for your enjoyment number four in this week's series! Watch for it, and for your name in these columns on Saturday.

In yesterday's drawing, featuring the actors appearing at the Keith's, Boston the stars were Ray Milland, Edgar Kennedy and the famous Nat Goff of the movies. The name of the co-feature with "The Cowboy Millionaire" is "Women Do Dark."

"I'm going to send for that Scale Contest Manual today."

Among them were Lawrence Kreuger, 14, of 437 Beach street, Roslindale and Louis Young of Newtonville, who expressed satisfaction over the number of photographs, drawings and ready-to-cut-out patterns. They agreed that not one who couldn't follow the step-by-step instructions could never make anything.

The model to be built is a 1-20th scale of the Junior Birdmen official plane, the Sikorsky S-39 amphibian and must have solid wings and tail, solid hull, cut-out cabin with complete interior details and movable working controls.

The Boston wing competition will be held Easter week for prizes of $50, $25 and $10 with the winner given the chance of winning an additional $1000, $500 or $250 with the same plane in the national contest.

Those who do not win can't be called losers as they will have had the best possible guide and plans and the experience of making a real scale model that may be good enough to sell for exhibition or decoration.

This contest is unique in that while the models must be constructed by the entrants, their makers need not bring them to the contest headquarters themselves, but may send them through the mails. This should mean much to those who do not live near Boston and usually cannot take part in the wing contests.

The Leaping Lenas of Everett commanded by Leslie Woodman have accepted the challenge of the 200th squadron of Quincy, commanded by Torrey L. Capo, to a meet at Muller's Airport in Revere on August 24. There are to be three events, fuselage, stick and hand-launched class B gliders.

The Arms of Death

And How They Came to Wrap Themselves Around Air Pilot

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO, EVERYBODY:

Well, by golly, we're off again on one of those adventure flights of ours, and the pilot of this little trip is Roy Bassett, of 349 West 29th street, New York city. Roy, after flying airplanes for a good many years has come to believe that there is a time and a place for everything.

Understand, Roy hasn't the slightest objection to this business of holding a personable young lady in his lap. But he thinks it ought to be done in romantic places, and not, as he once tried it, in the front seat of an unmanageable sky buggy, two or three thousand feet up in the air.

At the time this adventure happened to Roy he was flying a small sport plane out of a field near Elmhurst, Ill., carrying passengers when there were any to carry and giving instructions to people who wanted to learn to fly when there weren't any passengers to be had. The ship he had then was a parasol type monoplane—one of the sort where the pilot and the passenger sat side by side.

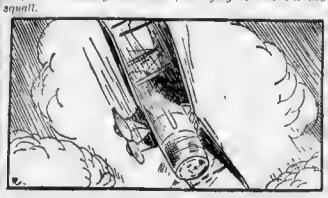
It was originally designed for a twenty horse-power motor, but Roy had put a fifty-five-horse-power motor in it, and that made her exceptionally quick to respond to the controls and caused her to develop various tricks that you didn't find in the average plane. She was a hard one to handle—especially on landing, for she landed at sixty miles an hour and had to be brought down tail high.

But to get on with the story—Roy was going through his routine work one day in the summer of 1930 when an attractive young lady about twenty years of age approached him and asked to be taken for a ride.

Well, that was the business Roy was in, and he'd have taken the Witch of Endor up for a spin just so long as she had the money to pay for it. The fact that the lady was young and good looking just made the transaction all the more pleasant. He dug up an extra helmet and an extra pair of goggles, started the motor and off they went.

Everything was all right until they had climbed to an altitude of about three thousand feet. Then Roy looked at his passenger and noticed that she didn't seem to be enjoying the ride. She sat huddled in the seat, staring straight ahead at the instrument board, and her face—or as much as Roy could see of it—was a deathly white.

About that time the ship ran into a line squall and he had to turn his attention away from the girl. He bent all his energy to riding the air bumps for a minute, until suddenly his passenger started to scream. She wanted to go down, she said, and Roy yelled back to her that he would get her down as soon as possible. At the moment, he told her, he was having his hands full trying to ride out the squall.



And the next thing Roy knew he was in real trouble. Still screaming at the top of her voice, the girl was out of her seat and in Roy's lap. She kicked the control stick out of his hand, jammed it forward with her knees. And then, as the ship pointed downward in a power dive, she wrapped her arms around Roy's neck, knocking off his glasses, blocking his vision and all but choking him to death.

The plane was roaring toward the earth with all the speed that gravity and a fifty-five-horse-power motor could give it. Fighting for his life, Roy shook himself free of those entangling arms and threw the girl back to the other side of the seat. His goggles off, Roy's eyes had become as full of water that he couldn't see. He slumped down behind the windshield, and, while drying his eyes as best he could, pulled the ship out of her dive.

With the ship righted Roy again looked at his passenger. She was still screaming that she wanted to get out and now she had the door open—getting ready to jump. For the second time Roy let go of the control stick while he reached out and grabbed her by the back of the neck. This time the ship went into a spin, but there was nothing to do but let it spin until he had dragged the hysterical woman back into her seat again.

This time, Roy decided, he would have to hang onto his passenger until he had the ship safely on the ground again. With his free hand he grabbed the stick and pulled the plane out of her spin, but he was soon faced with another problem. The throttle on the instrument board was worked with the right hand, but Roy's right hand was busy holding the screaming woman. He couldn't close the throttle without letting go of the control stick, and, to make matters worse, the throttle was loose and wouldn't stay shut even if he did close it.

The squall was still raging. He couldn't cut the switch and make a stall landing because he needed power to fight the air bumps. So he did the only thing he could. With his left hand moving like lightning between throttle and stick, he somehow managed to work the plane down to the field.

"And," he says, "if you've ever done any flying on a rough day you'll know what a job that was. The traditional one-armed paperhanger had nothing on me. And when I finally got my ship and cargo safely back at the hanger I delivered a silent but fervent prayer to Allah to deliver me from the combination of live squalls and hysterical women."

It's as easy as just reaching for it—and a heck of a lot more fun. That's what hundreds of Boston American readers say of the $10 and $100 bills they have received from headline-hunter Floyd Gibbons for their TRUE adventure stories. Floyd says everybody has had at least one thrilling experience, and he wants to write up yours. Send him the facts, and win a pocketful of dough, like Mrs. Henry W. Gould of Worcester, who drew a $10 check and a $100 prize.

HOW TO WIN $100.00

And Membership In The Floyd Gibbons Adventurers' Club

It's all very simple. There are no rules, and everyone is eligible. Just write down the facts of your most thrilling adventure and mail it to Floyd Gibbons, care of the Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston. Remember, the story must be TRUE. Don't worry about how well you can write. Floyd will take care of that. Floyd will pay $10 for every story printed and an extra prize of $100 for the best story of the month. Keep a copy of your story if you wish to have it, AS NO STORIES CAN BE RETURNED. Do not send valuable pictures or souvenirs of your adventure. Send the FACTS.

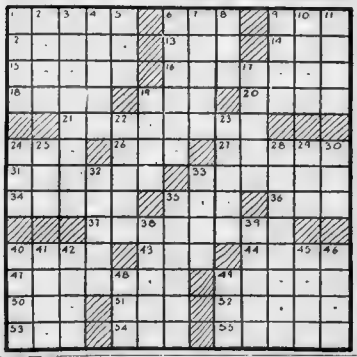
YESTERDAY'S ANSWERS



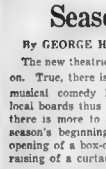
HOLLAND

CHARLES Washburn Opens Local Stage Season

By GEORGE HOLLAND

The new theatrical season is on. True, there is no play or musical comedy holding the local boards thus early, but there is more to a theatrical season's beginnings than the opening of a box-office or the raising of a curtain.

The season really gets underway when the press-agents of the theatrical producers make their weekly calls on the drama desks. With Chuck Washburn back in town, as sergeant-major of the parade of those colorful eccentrics who troupe ahead of the big attractions, the season 1935-36, as far as this department is concerned, has begun.



George Holland

Mr. Washburn is representing Eddie Dowling's revue "Thumbs Up," which comes to the Colonial on August 26. Charles is a charming and inventive professional liar. It was he who saluted forth in advance of George M. Cohan in "Ah! Wilderness," last season, thinking up stunts to further the mutual interests of Mr. Cohan and the Theater Guild.

• • •

His most daring of the 1934 season was the one in which he avowed that Mr. Cohan would tarry in Boston for at least 10 weeks, no less at least, and more perhaps. Mr. Cohan tarried exactly a month. But when Mr. Washburn arranged the stunt whereby Mr. Cohan furnished front page copy for the journals of this section by playing the town hall in North Brookfield (the actor's alleged birthplace for Mr. Washburn's purposes) without scenery and with amplifiers retailing the dialogue to assembled thousands in the town square, he won forgiveness.

Of course there was a bit of chicanery attached to that stunt, too, as Mr. Cohan was really born not far from the Providence City Hall. But out of his grease-paint, Mr. Washburn is a most honorable gentleman and quite a scholar.

• • •

He is also a smoothie. In considering his current small lie, which will follow directly, please remember that Boston has a tremendous Irish-American population. Herewith is the fable:

"Eddie Dowling of Providence and Woonsocket has gone out of his way to gather an Irish troupe for his 'Thumps Up,' says Mr. Washburn, and the only editor's note that is necessary about the opening paragraph is that Mr. Dowling is a resident of Bayside, Long Island, New York.

• • •

However.

"Even the songs in 'Thumbs Up' are Irish," continues Mr. Washburn. "Look at this one for instance: 'Zing, Went the (Harp) Strings of My Heart.' The harp, I am told, was deleted because the show was Erin enough without it.

"There's Mc-Bride, a Mc-Cullough, a Cameron, a Dooley and two Caseys on the roster. And a Healey, too.

"At a rehearsal in New York the other afternoon in walked the celebrated Arabian troupe known as the Demnati tumblers. Each of these swarthy gymnasts wore green in some fashion.

"'Nick,' said the Arabian. 'I'm taking no chances in this show any longer. From now on I'm Mc-Demnati.'"

• • •

Mr. Washburn closes his story by claiming that he is half-Irish himself. His grandmother was named Haynes and was born in Natick. For me, I'll have to see the birth certificate

All Aboard for the Seven Seas!

Parsons—Hollywood

Ronald Colman in "Under Two Flags"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor
(Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service)

Los Angeles, Aug. 14—Ouida's widely read book and oft produced play of some years ago, "Under Two Flags," will have more than just the French actress, Simone, as the attraction.

Darryl Zanuck, in making his plans for Ronald Colman, has decided to use Ouida's story, a Fox property which he inherited, to star Ronald Coman.

Louella O. Parsons

If our readers have not read Yolanda or Under Two Flags they may care to know it will be reproduced for them as a motion picture with a musical background. Carl Laemmle has purchased "Yellowstone," a screen play, by Arthur Phillips and Cy Bartlett, and the plan is to take a company to National Park for extensive location scenes. John King, baritone, formerly with Ben Bernie, makes his screen debut as male lead with Jean Rogers playing opposite him.

• • •

A little scooping around on the Warner Brothers lot reveals that Estelle Taylor is out of James Cagney's picture, "Frisco Kid," even though her costumes were underway, and I am told that tests had been taken of her. Negotiations are now on with Lili Damita for the role.

Lili's bridegroom, Errol Flynn, has delighted the hearts of the Warner crowd with the work he is doing in "Captain Blood" and it wouldn't surprise me at all to see Lili put under contract at this studio.

• • •

Winfield Sheehan starts his married life with beautiful madame Jeritza with the satisfaction of knowing that not only has he won one of the loveliest and most accomplished women in the world, but that when he returns from his honeymoon one of the biggest jobs ever offered any producer will be his.

I am not free to tell what I know now but I can say that Mr. Sheehan's last two smash hits, "Curly-Top" and "Farmer Takes a Wife" were not made in vain. He has had some of the finest offers made him ever given any one in the picture business.

• • •

Chatter in Hollywood. The very next Hollywood marriage will be that of Irene Dunne and Irene Hervey. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer would like to keep these one-time lambs, Bob, from marrying because he is so popular with the girls but he is sincerely in love with Irene and she with him and they announced at a small party that they expect to marry very, very shortly.

• • •

Lunching at Bebe Daniels' and Ben Lyon's with Jack Benny, Bill Mooring, Michael Balcon a representative. He had put in a call for Claudette Colbert to try and persuade her to come to England and play the lead in "One Glamorous Night," the Ivor Novello play which was so successful on the London stage. Balcon has already signed Ramon Navarro for the male lead.

"England," says Mr. Mooring, "isn't as fickle as America. Once Navarro steps off the boat he will be surrounded by admirers."

Snapshots of Hollywood

At the Bowdoin

New films at the Bowdoin for the remainder of the week are topped by "The Daring Young Man," with James Dunn, Mae Clarke and Neil Hamilton in leading roles.

The same program also offers "Calm Yourself," with a cast that includes Robert Young, Madge Evans, Ralph Morgan and Nat Pendleton. Thelma Todd and Patsy Kelly are starred in "Tin Man."

"The Virginian" Revival On Twin Screens

Gary Cooper

Gary Cooper, in his first role since the popular "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," has the title role, and Walter Huston, veteran of stage and screen, plays the part of Trampas, leader of the cattle bandits.

Richard Arlen and Mary Brian add further romantic interest, and Eugene Pallette and Chester Conklin are also prominently cast.

• • •

The companion picture on the new program is "Were In the Money," a comedy with romance, with Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell once more teamed as a couple of pretty pretty wives. Hugh Herbert and Rosa Alexander are featured in the cast.

Prize Film at Gayety

"The Informer," prize winning film of the season, takes over the screen tomorrow at the Gayety. Victor McLaglen has the leading role in the dramatic story of the Irish Revolution, and Margot Grahame and Heather Angel are featured in the supporting cast.

Begining Sunday Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon, one of the key witnesses in the Lindbergh kidnaping case, will make a series of personal appearances at the Gayety.

Rosamond Pinchot

At the Beach Theater, Old Silver Beach, West Falmouth, "Personal Fever" is the attraction for the remainder of the week.

Rosamond Pinchot, talented daughter of the ex-governor of Pennsylvania, who created the role of the Nun in Morris Gest's production, "The Miracle," has the leading role

The Big Hit that starts the new movie season! Set in the last frontier of the China Coast where "anything goes". With Clark Gable, hard-boiled skipper of a fury-lashed tramp steamer, and Wallace Beery, pirate leader, fighting for the warm arms of Jean Harlow, the "China Doll", amidst mutiny, typhoons, and pirate raids . . . See it for the thrill of a lifetime!

SEE— HONG KONG, seething cauldron of intrigue and danger!

This Is Life
ROBERT E. ROGERS

It is hard to decide which legislative body is more habitually given to reconsiderations, somersaults, uncertainties, and utter illogicalities—the Great and General Court of Massachusetts or the Congress of the United States.

A month ago one would have easily and without any dubiety awarded the palm to our Boston segregation, but as the summer draws out and the Congress stays in session wrestling with Mr. Roosevelt's tax megatherium the Congress more and more comes to resemble our own chameleon Legislature.

Both seem to be not unlike that famous lizard in history that was put on a spot of plaid and burst.

It does not do hastily to conclude that the devious ways of the Great and General Court are the result of its particular representational character, because the Congress, with an entirely different representational character, exhibits exactly the same aberrations.

Nay, rather, it would seem that here in these sessions we are seeing at last the logical result of a theory of representation which the Founders would certainly have strongly reprobated.

Instead of legislative bodies of men who can qualify for natural leadership by social and financial position, education and professional standing, and reputation for disinterested common sense, it is generally admitted that the majority of our representatives, both in national and state politics, are men who could possess leadership in no other field except politics.

Weathervanes

The dominant philosophy of the legislator of today is that of the weathervane, to turn with the prevailing wind—or, better still, to whirl with every momentary puff and then to whirl again.

On Monday Father Coughlin spoke to our legislature of the dangers to democracy. He spoke of Communism and Fascism.

He did not add that another danger is that our legislatures here and in Washington are getting far too deep into the habit of letting Father Coughlin and others like him do their thinking for them instead of thinking for themselves.

It is conceivable that the arousing of mass reaction over the radio, the mass barrage of telegrams—often shameless forgeries — are quite as much dangers to the American democracy as anything that originates in Moscow or Berlin.

Germany may very well suggest that we put our own house in order before we indulge in supererogatory protests against dictatorship abroad.

With such a notion of the function of a legislature, one which makes it merely an automatic machine to test public blood pressure, our poor legislators find themselves in a position which would be tragic if it were not so ridiculous.

Both here and in Washington they seem to be caught between Scylla and Charybdis.

On the one hand they are under unrelenting pressure from chief executives who have a great deal to common.

Both are men of powerful wills, clear cut determination, great political sagacity, skill and inventiveness, and infinitely more intelligence than the majority of the common or garden legislators they have to deal with.

Wriggling

On the other hand the legislators obviously are wriggling very uncomfortably under the less specific but nevertheless powerful pressure of an electorate that is obviously determined to be satisfied with nothing, blown thither and yon by all the winds of doctrine, insistent that it is better to receive than to give, sure in its own mind that the majority must be found among its taxes for the benefits it receives so much as a matter of course from government, utterly dubious and uncertain whither the administration is heading or what its obvious opportunism means, harkening eagerly to the distant clarions of revolt, but entirely lacking any principles, economic or political, by which to judge the inventions of the administrations.

And so the political weathervanes twist and twirl on one issue after another, until one is inclined to believe that it would be just as well if the clerk of the session were authorized to draw a high card—twice out of three—for a decision quite as logical and well informed as those that are now handed down to us by the suffrages of the representative branch of our government.

Who would be willing to bet a nickel on what the slightest tax measure in its final form will be like?

Who will have the slightest confidence in its financial skill, economic justice, or political wisdom, once it is passed?

RAIL MEN

Skeptical OF U. S. Program

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
(Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service)

New York, Aug. 14—Skepticism concerning the efficacy of the federal program for rehabilitating the railroads has been expressed by some of the heads of the carriers.

The president of one of the important lines in the South said to me:

"Accept as sympathetically as you will the various studies which have been made by Coordinator Eastman, very few of them contain the seed for any substantial improvement, unless private property is to be wholly disregarded.

"He has not issued a single report that I have not conscientiously studied to find something which could be profitably adopted by the properties under my jurisdiction, yet there has been very little possible of accomplishment. I do not believe property rights should be disregarded in the foresight of one corporation should now be penalized by being made to join up with poorer roads of less natural advantages or which are poorly operated.

"If Mr. Eastman had approached the problem through the railroads themselves rather than through the press, he would have found a more receptive attitude, although the results might not have been greatly different. The formation of the Association of American Railroads offers more progress than work through the federal coordinator."

Questioned as to what the federal government could do effectively this executive added:

"The specific thing which the federal government could do it to pass such laws as will put all forms of carriage on an equal footing, even removing some of the restrictions from present steam transportation.

"It may even be that before the railroads can again prosper on a large scale there must not only be wage reductions but rate reductions in order to meet the new forms of subsidized competition.

"Sufficient expansion in gross volume of business would be enough to solve even the present difficulties of the railroads," the president declared.

"There are a number of lines whose problems would be solved by a moderate increase in traffic. There are many others which would require a substantial increase.

"In my own judgment, after having watched the operations of the railroads during federal control, a solution does not lie in government ownership.

"I believe this would be the most expensive course the taxpayer could take, would slow down progress and result in inferior service to the public.

"Prospects for railroad traffic and net earnings during the second half of the year are to my mind not very rosy.

Pig Iron Demand

There has been a noticeable broadening in demand for pig iron in this district and reports from dealers indicate that small shipments entering to a wide range of industry are stepping up their purchases

The Administration's Bludgeon: Taxation for Intimidation and Blackmail!

FROM time immemorial the taxing power in the hands of tyrants has been the most powerful of political bludgeons.

In the hands of a demagogic ruler who aspires to dictatorial absolutism the taxing power is used not only for intimidation and blackmail, but also to delight the rabble by summoning important men before "investigating" committees.

Instead of free corn and the games, as the Caesars gave them, our rulers now bait, harry and soak the successful. THERE ARE VOTES IN IT!

• • •

THE Administration at Washington has turned the country into a sort of bull-ring, where the SOLID CITIZENS OF THE COUNTRY, WITH INCOMES, INHERITANCES, GIFTS AND EXCESS PROFITS ARE GORED TO DEATH TO MAKE A SOCIALISTS' HOLIDAY.

In its fury of political ambition this Administration has used every device of the taxing power to cow and ruin not only the great business organizations which are the very cornerstone of the country's HEALTH and STRENGTH, but has even gone to the extreme point of picking out certain individuals as "examples."

The case of Andrew W. Mellon was a glaring instance of the Administration's decision to use its inquisitorial taxing powers for the purpose of making political capital.

• • •

THE fact that Mr. Mellon, like dozens of other wealthy business men in America, has done MORE TO SPREAD-THE-WEALTH by the expenditure of millions in wages, investments and gifts than the Socialistic and confiscatory schemes of all the Roosevelts, Wallaces and Tugwells in the world combined made no difference.

Some one MUST be made a political goat.

Some one MUST be made a "public example" by our bush-league Caesars.

Some one MUST be soaked.

So they swooped down on the ex-Secretary of the Treasury as Exhibit A.

• • •

IN the fanatical new-fangled American program of TO-THE-STOCKS-WITH-THE-PROSPEROUS-AND-WITH-PROSPERITY, Mr. Mellon was selected by the Administration to show cause why he should not pay to the Government $3,089,000 in income taxes allegedly due.

The whole case smelled of politics, if not DOWNRIGHT PERSECUTION.

So obvious had then become the persecution motive of the Administration that Mr. Mellon issued a statement in which he said:

"When a Secretary of the Treasury, member of the President's Cabinet, descends to a public attempt to influence a matter now on trial before a duly constituted court, that action is a crude effort TO INTERFERE WITH THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE AND A CONTINUATION OF THE POLITICAL EFFORTS in my case."

Here Mr. Mellon laid his finger on the precise secret spot in the body of the Administration whence emanates its whole taxation policy, especially its latest soak-and-clip plan.

This taxing mania, these rabid raids on the successful are ALWAYS "a continuation of the POLITICAL EFFORTS" of this Administration.

Many of the Congressmen who supported President Roosevelt's soak-and-clip "tax" bill gagged when it was time to vote.

They know that this is NOT a tax bill at all.

It is a weapon forged in the fires of political ambition to break the backs of those great legitimate business interests that have DARED TO OPPOSE the President's Moscow-born ideas.

• • •

UNDER the specious plea that more revenue is needed, the new "tax" bill is secretly designed to bring the Huey Longs, the Doctor Townsends and the rest of the demagogic ignoramuses over to the Roosevelt Socialist camp.

AND TO DO THIS THE PROSPEROUS MUST BE GOUGED TO A PULP!

And those successful men and corporations who antagonize this tax program and the other pie-eyed schemes of the Administration will be stood in the stocks like Andrew W. Mellon—for the delectation of the groundlings and the greater political glory of an Administration with crackpot dreams beyond the reaches of the Constitution and thinning pocketbook of the nation.

Where We Belong

Russia Knows

WHEN the United States recognized Russia, late in 1933, the Russian Government pledged itself to refrain from all Communist agitation in the United States.

This pledge, like most of Russia's promises, was worth considerably less than the paper it was written on.

Communist agitation has increased, as Communists themselves proudly admit. And those who most proudly admit it are members of the Comintern at Moscow—an officially nourished and encouraged branch of the Russian Government.

A Red revolution and the installation of a Soviet tyranny in America are prayerfully sought by Moscow.

Still Superstitious

Now It's the $2 Bill

Despite the progress of education, human nature still clings to SOME superstitions.

For reasons never revealed, two-dollar bills have long been unpopular in many sections.

President George E. Dean of the Falmouth National Bank reported shipping $3500 in such bills out of the Cape Cod town the other day.

The non-superstitious can reflect on the fact that they're just TWICE as lucky to receive a two-dollar bill as to get one of half the value.

Compulsory Insurance

Should Cost Less

Good news from the office of Registrar Frank A. Goodwin is the July report showing motor fatalities at the LOWEST since 1926.

It is hoped that the safety record of Massachusetts will show even further improvement.

Besides the saving in lives and property there is a promise of lowered insurance rates for motorists.

Abolition of the guest rider provision and the drop in accidents should soon bring a REDUCTION in the burdensome compulsory insurance rate.

Port of Boston

Activity Increased

An outstanding feature this year is the tremendous excursion business.

The current week started with capacity crowds thronging the big steamers cruising Massachusetts Bay and on the Provincetown and Buzzards Bay lines.

The growing all-around business of our port amply justifies ALL the improvements planned by Governor Curley and others.

Thrifty Bay Staters

They Manage to Save

State Bank Commissioner Henry H. Pierce makes the pleasing announcement that deposits in Massachusetts savings banks and trust companies continue to grow.

The latest figures cover from October, 1934, to June, 1935. They show an INCREASE of $76,500,000.

THE DESPOILER

In a publication of the Chase National Bank, Dr. Benjamin M. Anderson, the economist of that institution, a former Harvard instructor, makes a searching analysis of the Federal Administration's "soak the successful" tax bill.

Discussing one phase—the death taxes—Dr. Anderson says:

"There are important objections to estate and inheritance taxes per se as compared with other forms of taxation . . .

"(1) There is the objection of accidental and unequal incidence of the tax as between families where deaths come normally, spaced out from generation to generation, and families where two or three deaths come in close succession.

"(2) There is the objection that the amount of the tax depends upon the accident of the state of market values at the time of death . . . Cases exist where NOTHING has been left for the heirs . . .

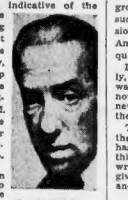
"(3) Inheritance and estate taxes at high rates are TAXES ON CAPITAL . . . Very high inheritance and estate taxes necessarily involve liquidation and commonly involve a sacrifice in values—to the advantage of speculators on the lookout for bargains, BUT NOT TO THE SOCIAL ADVANTAGE . . .

"Such liquidation involves DISRUPTION OF ORGANIZATION and SHIFTING OF MANAGEMENT AND CONTROL in business."

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Aug. 14—The newest dog shop, decorated at a cost of $26,000, is indicative of the change in the merchandising of man's best friend. The once smelly, cluttered-up holes in the wall have almost vanished. Two in the new splendor even have uniformed doormen.



Sanitization has been so perfected the usual doggy O. O. McIntyre aroma is now a slight fragrance, suggesting myrrh.

The fox-tails pets are no longer cooped in stuffy, latticed crates and panting from exhaustion. Instead they are tethered around a spread of rubber carpeted dais, backed by mirrors.

Within reach of all is a running flow of drinking water. Attendants are in spotless duck and the dogs are exercised every three hours. Also combed, powdered and given a teeth brushing daily. That scourge of the kennel, distemper, and the pesky flea are vanquished.

Many of the silkiest offerings are depression victims. Once rich owners making a final sacrifice. A Scottie today, gazing wistfully for a new master, was owned by a bankrupt stage star. A Russian wolf hound, descended from the Czar's private kennels, was also on the block. And so on.

Nothing is more touching than restrained masculine grief. In a traffic tie-up today, a huge limousine revealed a patrician Union League type. A sort of Warren Harding in his pontifical prime.

One hand clutched a telegram in slight convulsive twitches. But he sat unbowed, with tears coming slowly down. It was easy to see he was suffering stoically some terrific wrench. After thought: Maybe it was tax news from Washington.

America's writingest editor is Fulton Oursler. Aside from editing several magazines, he writes most of the editorials, reviews the books, turns out special articles and fiction under various pseudonyms and generally manages to author one, sometimes two, full-length novels a year.

He does his editing by teletype, living at Cape Cod and visiting his city office at intervals. His wife, Grace Perkins, is also a successful writer. She is a sister of the radio's Ray Perkins, another success.

Paris had a pathetic little upshoot of journalism recently. A group of young correspondents suddenly beached by the suspension of the foreign edition of an American paper, launched a quixotic and peppy little tab.

It was both weekly and weekly, survived a few editions and was seen no more. There are now more than 200 stranded newspapermen from all parts of the world in Paris.

They have a little club room the management of Du Dome has set apart for them on the third floor. Anyone who gets a writing assignment is pledged to give 20 per cent toward sustenance of unemployed brothers.

It's completely tenanted by politely cautious flimflammers—mail order electric belt concerns, deep breathing schools, quick-selling carnival gadgets and a score or more of cunning caterers to those who seem actually to enjoy gentle humbuggery.

Elevator jobs there are the softest in town. Scarcely anyone is carried up and down save the renters, as all business contacts are made by letter, telegraph or telephone.

W. C. Fields, boarding up the street, who coined "Never give a sucker an even break!" was also listed—of all people! Every few mornings the salesman managed to get me on the phone to flush a new rainbow of promise.

At first, feeling yokel conscious, I would hang up in the salesman's ear. Later on his sporting glibness became amusing and in the end I swallowed hook, line and sinker.

I still don't know how he did it, but for $150, drawn from a staid savings bank, I got a 15-share allotment in a hoodus that was to revolutionize the bakery business. When the final disillusionment came, I joined Dr. Munyon for a hand in the air pose and breathed a fervent never-again avowal.

I had my lesson and turned to an established investment house. No more wildcat stuff. I bought only the sturdy bonds of Peru, of the good old reliable cement industry, of Chicago's biggest hotel, of vast Cuban sugar combines—don't we all simply have to have sugar? No sir, they'd never catch me napping!

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

LIKE A PRAYER

It was midnight. I couldn't sleep. One of those troubled nights you know them—when all the twisted thoughts, which you can manage in the day, move in and take possession.

Elsie Robinson

The house wasn't right. Houses, when you're too tired or worried, aren't good for you. They're tainted. So much has gone on in them . . . so much weakness and waste and pain.

And the memory of it all seems to have seeped into the very wood. No, you'd better get away from houses when you're in a jam with life—

So I went out to the trees, to the foot of an old pine that has been my friend for many years.

It is very tall and powerful—that old pine. Standing at its base, its crest was lost in the darkness and I could only see a section of its rugged trunk. But even that section was comforting.

It was so straight and filled with purpose, that tree—so much surer than I, with my bewildered thoughts, my conflicting desires. It was getting somewhere.

There was something triumphant about the way it rose out of the litter at its feet and went soaring up into the shadow, to some wide, free place, far above.

I put my hand on it, and beneath the rugged bark I could feel the eager, lifting life. Almost it seemed to be lifting me with it.

And I thought how often I had prayed. Furious, frantic prayers for release—pleading, sobbing prayers for comfort. For I believed in prayer. And yet—

INTO THE DARKNESS

Somehow prayer nearly always failed me. No matter how utterly I threw myself into a prayer, it never seemed to get me anywhere. Nothing came back.

My words went out and out into the darkness, as this great tree went, and that was the end of them.

But was it? Was that really the end of a prayer? Suddenly, touching that tree, I saw prayer in a new light. There was the great tree, going up and up. I could not see where it went—but I knew that it did go.

And even my limited glimpse of its strong, striving trunk did something to me . . . released me from the clutter and clutch of trifles . . . put me in contact with the serene starlight, the great, clean winds, the surging sunlight and clean immensity of the sky.

NONE REALLY LOST

And wasn't that exactly what a prayer did, if I had the sense to see it? A prayer was a mystery as a tree was a mystery—as all life was a mystery. I could not understand that mystery. I could not see where it began nor where it went. I could only catch a glimpse of its eager striving. As I could only catch a glimpse of the great tree—

So I had thought that my prayers "went nowhere." But that was merely because I didn't have the wisdom to follow them, nor the courage nor strength to free myself from the things that held me down.

But no prayer was really lost—no sincere prayer failed. Every plea went on—and did something for the one who made it. Lifted him—

One rarely received the thing for which one asked. But even in the asking one was lifted up. Each brave gesture, each tall wish—even though it was as brief as the glimpse of that shadowy trunk—put one in contact with a greater, wider plan—

Isn't It So?

To do, one must be doing.

Nothing is bought for nothing.

Daily Bible Text: "Turn thou to thy God. Keep kindness and justice and wait for thy God continually."—Hosea 12:6. Suggested by the Rev. W. G. Stowell, Baptist Church, Stoneham.

The Man Who Is Good to a Boy

By Edgar A. Guest

The man who is good to a boy may
Be sure of a friend or two
And think of that youngster no more, perhaps,
Than the rest of the world will do.

He may die on the gallows for murder,
And yet
That boy till life's journey is o'er
Will wonder about him and keep him in mind,
And think him a hero because he was kind.

The man who is good to a boy may pass on
And never once think of the lad,
But the boy will remember long after he's gone
The wonderful friend he once had,
And down through the years of his life he'll recall
With affection that kindly and first friend of all.

Well, a graybeard was chatting today
And he told me how often he'd wished that he knew
He seemed to him then, and he thinks of him yet,
As the handsomest man that he ever has met.

"He may have gone up or he may have gone down
And today he is dead beyond doubt,
But with me he lives on with lasting renown
That nothing can ever wash out.
I remember him still with the greatest of joy.
That man who passed by and was good to a boy."
